HOWELL CHARGES OF DRY NEGLECT GET QUICK REPLY

President Calls on Senator to Furnish Specific Proof of Wetness in Capital City.

NEBRASKAN EVADES DIRECT ANSWER

Hoover Challenge Met by Statement Alleging General Knowledge of Wetness—Wilson Asks Guns.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

United News Staff Correspondent. Washington, September 22.—President Hoover pledged himself, in a formal statement issued at the White House tonight, to a vigorous investigation of prohibition law violations in the national capital, with the aim of securing "the fullest enforcement possible" and of making the capital a model for the country.

The statement was in reply to charges of law violations here made in the senate yesterday by Senator Howell, republican, Nebraska, who said that Washington could be made dry if the president would insist upon it. He pointed out that the president is all powerful in the District of Columbia and could call the commissioners before him and threaten to dismiss them if they did not enforce the law.

The president did not mention specifically Howell's contention that ships and trucks were bringing in liquor for diplomats here in violation of the law and that this could be stopped by confiscating ships which bring the liquor into Baltimore and trucks which bring it here from Baltimore.

The president asked that Howell submit specific information, with definite facts as to time and place, to which the Nebraska senator replied tonight that the treasury department had information about the liquor ships and trucks and that local police should have information about the bootlegging which he said is going on here.

The president's statement follows: "The prohibition law is not being enforced in the District of Columbia seriously impugns the good faith and capacity of Commissioner Dougherty, in charge of police; Superintendent of Police Tracy, in charge of fire, and I am sure that the prohibition law is not being enforced in the District of Columbia."

The president is glad the senator has raised the question. "He is confident that the senator would not make these charges unless they were based upon definite facts, with time and place, and if he will lay any such information before the department of justice, the president will have the matters vigorously investigated, for it is the intention not only to secure the fullest enforcement agencies as provided by law, but to make it a model in the country."

No Specific Charges. Howell said tonight that as far as he was concerned he had no specific charges, explaining that he had discussed prohibition violations in the District of Columbia briefly yesterday.

Oil Baron Declares He Merely Matched Practice of Government in Watching Jurors.

BITTER STATEMENT COMES FROM JAIL

Plea for Commutation of Sentence Based Solely Upon Merits of Case and Not Ill Health.

Washington, September 22.—(AP)—Harry F. Sinclair, imprisoned oil magnate, said today that his petition for clemency which was denied yesterday by President Hoover had not been based upon ill health but upon the claim that he was sentenced for doing something not prohibited by statute or rule of court.

Sinclair's statement was issued from the District of Columbia jail and was accompanied by one from his business associate, Henry Mason Day, who, with him, was sentenced for jury shadowing in the Sinclair trial for conspiracy in securing the Teapot Dome oil leases. Day also asserted that jury shadowing had not theretofore been construed as contempt of court.

After stating that his health was "as good as could be expected, under the circumstances," Sinclair said that observation of a jury only became contempt of court when I engaged in it. He then vigorously attacked the statement of Attorney-General Mitchell recommending a denial of commutation, declaring it could be summed up to mean "that I should remain in jail because I was acquitted of an alleged offense for which he feels I should have been convicted."

"I am imprisoned," Sinclair said, "not for having committed any crime by law, not for having violated any rule theretofore established by the court, but because I caused a jury that was trying me for an alleged conspiracy against the government to be kept under surveillance. For this I was judged in contempt. No member of the jury was approached by operatives in my employ nor were they molested in any way, nor were they even conscious that they were being observed and they so testified."

The oil man asserted he had indulged in the jury shadowing and felt justified in doing so, because "of the knowledge that the same identical practice had been indulged in by the government so frequently that it had become a common occurrence."

"Affidavits of numerous former employees of the intelligence service of the United States," Sinclair said, "including a former chief of that service, were submitted with my application, showing conclusively that the practice of jury surveillance was a usual practice by United States attorneys throughout the country, with the approval of the attorney general and the knowledge of the judges. I propose to secure the publication of these affidavits."

Sinclair said there had been no sinister purpose in what he had done and that no court had so found.

"The attorney general states, if he is correctly quoted in the press, he

Funeral To Be Conducted At Four O'Clock This Afternoon at Macon Methodist Church.

Macon, September 22.—(AP)—Georgia tomorrow will pay its last respects to Nathaniel Edwin Harris, former governor, distinguished Confederate veteran and father of the Georgia School of Technology, who died last night at his summer home at Hampton, Tenn., after a lingering illness.

The funeral will be conducted from the Mulberry Street Methodist church here at 4 o'clock in the afternoon by Rev. C. R. Jenkins, pastor of the church.

The casket will be draped with the Stars and Bars of the Confederacy and a company of national guardsmen will fire a military salute over the grave. Taps will be sounded as the casket is lowered.

Active and honorary pallbearers have been chosen from among high officials of the state, prominent educators and intimate friends of Governor Harris.

These are: Active—W. R. Rogers, Jr., former congressman; C. L. Bartlett, W. B. Birch, Henry Whitehead, R. F. Burden, J. Ellsworth Hall, John T. Boffe, Roland Ellis and Bridges Smith.

Honorary—Chief Justice Richard B. Russell, Associate Justices S. Price Gilbert and Alexander W. Stephens and Sanders McDaniel, Atlanta; Judge Peter W. Meldrum, T. M. Cunningham and A. R. Lawton, Savannah; Colonel John W. Clark, pension commissioner, Atlanta; Calvin W. Parker, public service commissioner, Waycross; Charles C. Brantley, Valdosta; Judge Ogden Persons, Forsyth; Judge John S. Candler, Atlanta; Chancellor Charles M. Snelling, University of Georgia, Athens; Raymond Stapleton, formerly private secretary to Governor Harris, Elberton; F. R. Homes, also a former private secretary, Atlanta; Nal Emanuel, mayor of Brunswick; Judge Horace M. Holden, Athens; W. Sam Askey, Atlanta; Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of the Georgia School of Technology, Atlanta, and the faculty and board of trustees of Georgia Tech.

Governor Harris was 84 years of age and had been suffering for more than a year from trouble that forced his retirement from public life. During the last few weeks he had been sinking gradually and his illness, together with advanced age, soon wore down his resistance. The end came a few hours after he lost consciousness yesterday afternoon. The family was at his bedside for several days before his death.

Governor Harris attained the highest office in the gift of his people, of his adopted state as the climax to a career that had its beginning, as far as Georgia was concerned, in his self-exile from Tennessee, where he was born. Returning to his home after four stormy years in the army of Lee, he found his family subjected to the prejudices of neighbors because of their sympathy with the south. The circumstances became unbearable and the young Harris moved the family to a rented Georgia farm, where was

TECH WILL BEGIN 40TH YEAR TODAY

Capacity Enrollment Is Seen for Opening Day. Many Changes Made in Roster of Faculty.

With numerous changes evident in the personnel of the faculty and with a capacity enrollment, the Georgia School of Technology will open its doors at 8 o'clock this morning for regular classes, beginning its fortieth year as a major institution of higher learning in the south.

It has been estimated that the North avenue institution is equipped to care for some 2,300 students in the regular school. This year, in addition to the number of seniors, juniors and sophomores who are returning from the previous years, approximately 1,150 applications have been received at the office of the registrar for admission to the freshman class.

Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of the school, reported early in July that capacity had been reached with regard to these prospective freshmen, and that applications would be necessary be refused thereafter after that time. It is practically assured that the institution will be running at capacity during the year, which is to open this morning.

Freshman Week, which is a period of orientation to college methods, opened one week ago. The first year men have flooded the campus for the past seven days in an effort to learn their way about and to assimilate some knowledge of educational procedure at Georgia Tech.

Numbers of upper classmen also have been about the campus during the past week, some concerned with the passing of courses in summer school, some interested in the football team, and others, frantically working on the activities of "Rush Week," which opened last Tuesday.

Other upper classmen streamed into the campus during the latter part of the week. Latest reports from the offices of Registrar Hugh Caldwell and Deans W. V. Skiles and Floyd T. Fisher, who are in charge of registration, indicate that Tech will easily be filled to capacity this year in spite of earlier reports to the effect that many of the applicants would not appear to register.

40 Added to Faculty. Some 40 additional names have been added to the faculty staff at Tech. Seven of this number are to instruct at the Evening School of Commerce on Forsyth street, while the remainder will hold classes on the campus.

Registration at the evening school is slated to open on September 30, and will continue through October. Two new features will be added to courses this year. The Rayson school will be added to the text department and the ground school of aviation is to be installed by the department of naval science and tactics. Both departments will have new members to the faculty and will be open to juniors and seniors exclusively.

Alderman Millican Will Offer Paper Carrying Out Recommendations of Ham Eidson &amp; Co.

A new effort will be made to obtain councilmatic sanction for the centralization in the city controller's office of all accounts involving municipal receipts and expenditures, it was announced Sunday night by Alderman G. Everett Millican.

Alderman Millican said he shortly would introduce an ordinance in council to provide carrying out of recommendations favoring such a centralization which were made by Mayor I. N. Ragsdale Saturday by the auditing firm of Ham Eidson &amp; Company, employed by Atlanta to check the municipal accounts.

The alderman was the author of a similar measure which failed to get council's approval several months ago. "I believe the plan has gained considerable support in the last several months and will be adopted this time," Alderman Millican said. "The report of the auditors and their recommendation from very encouraging."

The alderman said he had gained considerable support in the last several months and will be adopted this time. "The report of the auditors and their recommendation from very encouraging."

Committee to Be Named. Alderman Millican said he would hold up presentation of his ordinance until a committee is named to study the Mayor Ragsdale plans to appoint considers the auditors' recommendations and reports back to council.

The report of the auditing firm submitted to the Mayor Saturday and which was announced, he planned to refer immediately to the council, goes into detail concerning the financial operations of all of the city's major departments and points out the necessity of consolidating the accounts of the various departments.

The auditing of all invoices and contracts and the preparation of vouchers for the auditing department of the comptroller's office," the report states, "relieving all departments from the burden of responsibility except as to placing requisitions for purchases and acknowledgments of quantities and qualities. In this connection, the auditing department could very profitably employ the services of an outside inspector whose duties would be to obtain first-hand information on the quantities and qualities and quantities of purchases."

Much Bookkeeping Required. Under the present system a great amount of bookkeeping is done on the various offices as well as in the comptroller's office.

In regard to the revision of the accounting system the report says: "We suggest for your consideration a revision of your general accounting records, with a view to placing the financial activities of the city on a revenue and expense basis, with due regard to the several fund accounts. This method would provide accounts by which activities of one year can be fairly compared with those of another year."

The foregoing suggestion does not imply any changes of a radical nature nor experimenting of any kind. The adoption would be in applying sound and tried accounting principles as advocated by authorities on municipal accounting."

York Will Ask City To Meet School Board Half-Way in Its Effort To Prevent Cut.

Despite the fact that the city of Atlanta itself is short of funds and that any further expenditures for the year must be anticipated, Councilman Harry York, of the sixth ward, announced Sunday he will ask appropriation of $62,500 to the Atlanta board of education in an effort to prevent slashes in salaries of Atlanta school teachers and other employees of the Atlanta public school system.

The finance committee of the city council will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon to hear a petition from a special committee of the board asking allocation of an additional $125,000 to the school department, and Mr. York will offer his paper at that time.

General opinion among members of the finance committee is that the city will all afford to make further appropriations this year because it is badly in need of additional finances and at the present time is unable to provide funds for purchase of equipment and fixtures for the new $1,000,000 city hall.

Councilman York's Plan. Mr. York said he would insist that the city meet the board half-way in its effort to prevent salary cuts and would suggest that the board absorb out of other accounts the additional $62,500 needed to make up the amount necessary to obviate the salary reductions. About 1,400 employees are affected, with approximately 1,200 of that number being teachers.

Mr. McIntosh M. Burns, president of the board, declared Sunday night that it would be impossible to absorb the necessary amount from any fund or from any group of funds because the board has economized already to such an extent that the maintenance department has been reduced to a skeleton staff and the heating plants may break down and that the schools in which this might occur would have to be closed pending repairs if the weather grows very cold before January 1.

"I feel that city council should meet the board half-way in its effort to prevent the salary slash and will insist that the finance committee take steps to allocate $62,500, half of the amount asked, to the school department."

Prevention of Cut Urged. "We should do everything possible to prevent a cut in the salaries of teachers and other employees of the system who have given faithful and efficient service," Mr. York said. "I feel that the committee can do nothing less than set up half of the amount asked. Financial condition of the city will not permit appropriation of more than that amount, I feel sure."

"It is my purpose to ask the board to absorb the difference and pay employees of the system without any reduction in salary."

"It would be impossible for the board to rearrange its budget in any manner which would prevent a deficit of the very last dollar," Mr. York said. "Dr. Burns declared, 'We have cut at every turn and have practiced every economy. We are now appealing to the council to assist us.'"

"When we made up the budget we reduced the maintenance department so that the program was curtailed to the very last dollar," Mr. York said. "We have cut at every turn and have practiced every economy. We are now appealing to the council to assist us."

The next superior court action scheduled in connection with the various labor troubles is the special term of the Mecklenburg superior court to try 16 National Textile Workers' Union members accused of slaying O. F. Adherolt, Gastonia police chief, in a clash with strikers there in June. The special term will begin September 30.

International Labor Defense announced tonight that an organization of the National Textile Workers' Union was held today to discuss the "changed strategy necessitated by the suppression of the rights of free speech, free assembly, and to organize without interference."

After declaring mob violence in the textile mills as a "black fascist gang," the statement announcing the conference had been held said: "This report of the conference must be, necessarily, vague and general. All names and places must be eliminated, as giving this information to the mill owners would serve them as a guide in their plans for the next attack."

The statement said the conference laid plans for an organization drive in preparation for the southern textile workers' conference to be held here October 12 and 13.

QUET SABBATH IN STRIKE AREA

Normal Day Quite in Contrast to Situation That Had Two Counties in Uproar.

Charlotte, N. C., September 22.—(AP)—The quiet of the normal Sabbath of a southern city today ruled in Gaston and Mecklenburg counties sharply contrasting with the situation that had the two in an uproar for 10 days.

Activities of the National Textile Workers' Union and the communist leaders, whose efforts to hold meetings and form organizations in the cotton mills of this section were the target for much of the reported mob violence and one death, were either suspended or they operated under cover. Reports at headquarters of the International Labor Defense offices here were that such meetings were being held secretly.

The International Labor Defense had called "mass protest" meetings for September 21 and 22 over the death of Mrs. Ella May Wiggins, union member, who was shot and killed September 14 by a mob when she and 21 others were turned back in Gastonia while trying to attend a meeting called by William F. Dunn, secretary of the communist party in America, and National Textile Workers' Union officials. These meetings were to be nationwide but if any of them were held in this section they were not reported from any source.

The American Civil Liberties Union through Roger Baldwin, its representative here, announced last night it would pay a reward of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Mrs. Wiggins.

Aside from these various announcements there was nothing out of the usual during the week-end. Seven men were arrested and charged with manslaughter for the slaying of Mrs. Wiggins at an inquest held a week ago today. They were released in $1,000 bond each. The inquest, slated to be concluded yesterday, was set over until next Wednesday.

The next superior court action scheduled in connection with the various labor troubles is the special term of the Mecklenburg superior court to try 16 National Textile Workers' Union members accused of slaying O. F. Adherolt, Gastonia police chief, in a clash with strikers there in June. The special term will begin September 30.

Colonel Lands at Trinidad Ahead of Schedule; New Book by Flyer Announced.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, September 22.—(AP)—Landing here two minutes ahead of his schedule at 4:52 p. m., Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh completed the extension of the United States air mail from Miami, Fla., through the West Indies, to the tip of South America.

Tomorrow Lindbergh will take off for Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, blazing the initial air-mail trail to the eastern coast of the South American continent. He is accompanied by Mrs. Lindbergh, the former Anne Morrow, and by officials of the Pan-American Airways, sponsoring the trip. Two planes are being used.

Swooping down here in the giant amphibian which he took off in San Juan, Porto Rico, at 6:02 this morning, Lindbergh was received by colonial officials. He will be the overnight guest of Colonial Governor Geir.

Virtual perfect flying conditions favored the flight, most of which lay over water passages between the far scattered Leeward and Windward islands. Three scheduled air-mail stops, at St. Thomas, Virgin Islands; St. John, Antigua, and Port Castries, St. Lucia, were made along the way. A courtesy call of 25 minutes was paid to the colonial governor at St. John, who happened to be at the island of St. Kitts, about 57 miles from the capital.

On account of the heavy load of mail which Lindbergh found waiting for him at San Juan, it was necessary to take a second plane to carry Juan T. Trippe, president of the Pan-American Airways, and his wife, who are making the trip. Lindbergh flew the mail plane and Mrs. Lindbergh rode with him. Both planes carried radio operators, who maintained constant communication with land stations through the West Indies and with Miami headquarters. Charles Lorber was Lindbergh's co-pilot.

Touches St. Thomas. Roaring away from San Juan, the flying colossus first touched St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, at 6:52 a. m., leaving at 7:19. St. Kitts, a distance of 164 miles, was reached at 9:19, and the take-off at 9:46. Proceeding from St. Kitts, Lindbergh landed in the protected harbor of St. John at 10:35, where he had some trouble in getting ashore on account of a large number of boats. He spent one hour and nine minutes there, having his plane inspected and refueled. The journey started again at 11:46, and at 1:30 p. m. the island of Martinique was passed. Port Castries, the air-mail stop for St. Lucia, was reached at 1:59 and left at 2:46. Along the way Lindbergh frequently relinquished the controls to Lorber and poured over a map going into technical details of the new air line. He advised with Trippe on the other plane through the radio.

At Port Castries, a large crowd lustily cheered the trans-Atlantic aviator as he stepped ashore. He was met by a large number of officials and to organize without interference."

After declaring mob violence in the textile mills as a "black fascist gang," the statement announcing the conference had been held said: "This report of the conference must be, necessarily, vague and general. Charles B. Beeland, on Epochal Flight, Is Graduate of Tech High.

When Charles B. Beeland was a kid out on the West Side he did his homework with a two-by-four camera in his backyard, photographing his own and the neighbors' dogs and doing a pretty good job of it.

Charles, the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Beeland, 1009 Ogleshorpe avenue, is a graduate of Tech High, and for a time attended Georgia Tech. At the morning service Sunday, the Rev. ## UNTERMYER URGES ANTI-TRUST LAW REPEAL IN TALK

New York, September 22.—(United News.)—Samuel Untermyer, noted attorney, advocated repeal of the Sherman anti-trust law in return for greater power and vigilance on the part of the federal trade commission in a radio talk tonight over Station WJZ, during Collier's hour.

"To enforce the prohibition law, difficult and well-nigh impossible as it appears," Untermyer said, "would be mere child's play as compared with such a hopeless undertaking as enforcement of the nation's anti-trust laws. It is not worth further considering. Our only remaining alternative is to wipe this legislation from the statute books and to substitute for it a policy that can be enforced. We must put effective regulated co-operation in place of pretended enforced unrestricted competition."

Outlining his proposals to remedy the situation, Untermyer suggested that the federal trade commission be given jurisdiction over all corporations engaged in interstate or foreign commerce; that all such corporations be required to hold licenses, granted by the commission, before engaging in such commerce; that the commission be given free access to the books of account of such corporations and the right of inquiry into all their transactions; that the commission be given jurisdiction over all so-called "institutions" and "trade associations" any of whose members are engaged in interstate or foreign commerce; that the commission supervise all investment trusts that use the mails, telephone and telegraph in interstate commerce.

PILOT'S PARDON FOR BAD TAKEOFF ASKED BY AMELIA

Columbus, Ohio, September 22.—(AP) Miss Amelia Earhart, trans-Atlantic flyer, stopped here today to apologize to a pilot of the Curtiss flying service for a near accident a week ago as she left Port Columbus for Kansas City.

Miss Earhart said that she was taking off from the field here in a cross wind and had gained speed for the takeoff before she saw the Curtiss plane coming in for a landing on the same runway.

"I was going too fast to stop, and in order to avoid a collision, I went over on one wheel and finally took off without incident," she explained.

She said that rules of the air give the landing plane the right of way, and asserted that "I want the pilot of that ship and others who say they know that I don't usually fly that way."

Miss Earhart, flying solo, stopped here en route to New York from Kansas City.

11 WHITE RUSSIAN GUARDS ARE KILLED BY SOVIET TROOPS

Chita, Siberia, September 22.—(AP) Eleven white Russian guards were killed, many wounded, ten horses and a number of rifles were captured in a terrific counter assault by Red army troops against White Russian bands today in the Voznesensky district, 25 miles northeast of Verkhinsk. The Soviet forces had only one wounded.

In the Pabi-Bugur district, five miles northeastward, Chinese troops unexpectedly attacked soviet frontier guards with rifle and machine guns but the assault was successfully repulsed by the Red army.

Similar attacks by Chinese occurred in the vicinity of Michinsk, 60 miles south, and at Ambar, where one soviet guard was officially listed as having been killed.

The foreign office filed an energetic protest with Moscow.

BANKS REDUCE DEBT TO FEDERAL RESERVE

Cut of $40,000,000 in Indebtedness Registered in Recent Weeks.

Washington, September 22.—(United News.)—Notwithstanding a sharp demand for currency to pay harvesting expenses and finance the autumn quickening of trade, member banks in recent weeks have been able to cut down their debt to the federal reserve system by $40,000,000.

Auguring an unusually strong reserve banking position, this development was outlined without comment by the federal reserve board today in the September federal reserve bulletin. The bulletin contains the first official explanation of the change of policy inaugurated by the board August 9, when the New York bank raised its rediscount rate to 6 per cent concurrently with a reduction in the reserve bank buying rate for acceptances.

The principal factor in reducing the member bank debt, according to the board, was a growth of $80,000,000 in reserve bank holdings of acceptances during August, a growth that exceeded by $25,000,000 the growth in currency demand. This, in turn, is traced by treasury authorities to the unusual plan adopted by the board for coping with the credit situation.

Buying Rate Drop.
"These changes," states the bulletin, referring to the August rate alterations, "together with an earlier reduction in buying rates on July 12, had the effect of stimulating New York to a differential in favor of the official bill rate, for an earlier differential in favor of the official discount rate."

The board offers little further in justification of its widely-discussed

"plan" which has been the target for much criticism of late in both banking and brokerage circles.

The National City bank, for example, questions "the justice of thus permitting non-member acceptance dealers to borrow from the reserve banks at rates lower than member banks can demand on most of their eligible paper," and doubts "the effectiveness of contradictory measures of this sort, particularly in the light of what has happened since their adoption."

ALLEGED KIDNAPER HELD AT CHICAGO IN DETROIT AFFAIR

Chicago, September 22.—(AP)—Seized on suspicion by Chicago detectives and identified by his police record, Abe Rosenberg, alleged Detroit kidnaper, gangster, and kidnaper, will be returned to Detroit in connection with the kidnapping there of David Cass, 22, who disappeared July 25.

No trace has ever been found of Cass, son of a wealthy Detroit real estate operator, police said.

Rosenberg is reputed head of the purple gang of Detroit extortionists and gunmen, according to officials, and was questioned in connection with the massacre of seven gangsters here St. Valentine's Day.

GALLOW'S SENTENCE Mississippi Must Die for Slaying Brother-in-Law

Brookhaven, Miss., September 22.—(AP)—Unless the higher courts or the governor intervene, Harry Smith, farmer, will be hanged in Lincoln county jail Friday, October 25, for the slaying of his brother-in-law, Tommie Case, near here on April 28.

Smith, late yesterday, was found guilty of murder in the local court, and his wife, who claimed she fired the fatal shot, was acquitted. Mrs. Smith told the jury at the first trial of her husband that she fired the pistol during an argument over some remark Case had made about her.

The board offers little further in justification of its widely-discussed

The airman's aversion—drizzly, cold weather with a low ceiling and practically no visibility—was on the local airport in force Sunday. Instead of the usual Sunday crowd of visitors and the customary heavy business there was an almost deserted field. The only interesting feature of the day was the arrival from Fort Worth of Doug Davis, who brought in a shiny new Travel Air.

The new ship, a three-place open cockpit biplane, with a five-cylinder, Wright J-6 motor, is to be used at the local field by the Texas Air Transport Company, for which Doug is the local representative. Despite the bad weather several local pilots took advantage of Doug's invitation to try out the latest addition to the local air squadron and all were enthusiastic in their approval of the new craft.

Three new students were signed during the past week by the Beeler Plevins School of Aviation, which has shown a fine increase in enrollment during recent months. The newcomers are Charlie Matthews, Robert Palmer and Cecil Walker, all of Atlanta, and all of whom intend to purchase ships as soon as they progress far enough in their instruction. Beeler Plevins' monoplane, which suffered a fractured wing when a plane ran amuck at the airport a few weeks ago, will be in first-class condition by next week-end, Beeler stated Sunday. The wing is scheduled to arrive about the middle of the week and the repair

Yo-Yoing Trio, Given 30 Days, Freed on Writ

Three Atlanta youths who Saturday afternoon were sentenced to 30 days each in the city stockade because a milkman, they say, thought them profane because they inquired if he could yo-yo, were at liberty Sunday in bail of $200, pending a higher court hearing granted them by writs of certiorari.

P. H. Kutzschan, 18, of 244 Doan street; his twin brother, P. T. Kutzschan; and Carl Mable, of a Dodd avenue address, were arrested last Thursday by city detectives on the complaint of J. G. South, 237 Doan street, a milkman, who declared that the trio, after cursing him, attempted to hold him up on Allene avenue about 5 o'clock on the morning they were arrested.

When arraigned before Recorder Murphy Holloway Saturday afternoon the youths maintained that they had merely been on an all-night yo-yo parade and though they admitted they interrogated South concerning his yo-yoing proclivities, they denied that they attempted to hold him up.

First Major Tariff Fight Is Scheduled This Week Over 'Flexible Provision'

Republicans Will Be Fortunate To Win in Vote Showdown, Mark Sullivan Says.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, September 22.—The outcome of the first major fight on the tariff in the senate will be known this week in the debate and vote on the "flexible provision." If the republicans win they will be fortunate. If every republican voted his private conviction, hardly any of the disputed features of the tariff bill would win. The republicans are nominally in the majority. Actually there must be subtracted from that ten mid-western progressive republicans invariably in the majority, two each from Nebraska, Wisconsin, North Dakota and South Dakota and one each from Iowa and Idaho. These ten can be deducted from the republicans in advance on practically every controversial roll-call on the tariff.

If the forty-five republicans remaining could be uniformly depended on, the plight of the republican leaders might not be so embarrassing. There is, however, another group, variable in number, whose vote with or against the republicans will change with the specific parts of the tariff that is under consideration. Of Michigan, has strong personal convictions and is unsympathetic to the whole spirit of individuals being bound by caucus or official party action.

Vote Uncertain. Senators Capper and Allen, of Kansas, especially the former, are as likely as not to vote against the regular republicans on questions in which the regular republicans seem to stand with the manufacturers as distinguished from the farmers. At least two other western republicans, except the same, Senator Pine, of Oklahoma, has voted with the insurgent republicans fairly consistently. Senators Cutting, of New Mexico, and Schull, of Minnesota, occasionally vote their own way. Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, would at all times rather be insurgent than regular, except on tariff rates, where he is more regular than Watson, the regular republican leader, himself. The flexible provision, however, is a question on which this week, is not a tariff rate, but a constitutional question. On it, Senator Johnson might readily resume his irregularity.

With all these deductions, the dependable regular republican strength is brought down to about thirty-six, when they need forty-eight. But even within the solid thirty-six there are strong individual convictions which make a weakness at the very heart of republican strength. It is revealed in private conversations, and even publicly, that many of the most regular republicans have distaste for many parts of this tariff bill.

When the eleven republican members of the senate finance committee were writing the tentative draft of the bill, they usually divided six to five with respect to the rates to be affixed. That means that in many cases the vote of the most regular republicans in the senate wanted lower rates than were written. If these five in the coming roll calls in the senate were to vote their individual convictions, this tariff bill would be utterly shot to pieces. There appears to be, however, a loose understanding that all the republican members of the finance committee shall support the rates which a majority of them fixed. That understanding is thin at best, and many of those bound by it are restless under it.

Opposes Smoot. Among the five regular republicans who in the committee frequently voted for rates lower than those in the bill was the chairman of the committee, Senator Smoot, of Utah. Senator Smoot was particularly opposed to the high industrial rates. The Utah senator has frequently been called a high priest of protection, but Senator Couzens, of Michigan, now says the Utah senator "does not even measure up to an altar boy." It should be added that Senator Couzens' remark was made in an approving spirit.

Hardly ever was so strange a remark made by one senator about another as when Senator Borah, of Idaho, said of Senator Smoot: "If we could have the vote of the senator from Utah incorporated in the bill, it would be an infinitely better bill." Incidentally, Senator Borah pointed out that of the six republican members of the committee who determined the rates on the bill, not one comes from the agricultural sections of the country. Five come from east of the Mississippi, and one, Shortridge, from California. The preference of Senator Smoot for lower industrial rates in this bill, and the contrast between him and other regulars, such as Reed, of Pennsylvania, is one of the most fruitful topics of conversation in Washington. A surmise occasionally made is that Senator Smoot earnestly wished to conform to the kind of tariff revision recommended by President Hoover.

Added to the general distaste of many regular republicans for the tariff bill as a whole, many have special reasons for disagreement with the flexible provision. The essential question involved in the flexible provision is whether individual tariff changes from time to time should be made by the president or by congress. The present bill gives the present, the president. Most of the regular republicans favor that, provided future tariff-making is to go on as in the past. Many republicans, however, are disgusted with the power of making individual changes given to congress as a start toward a complete revolution in tariff-making. They are disgusted with the power of making individual changes given to congress as a start toward a complete revolution in tariff-making. They think it would be good if there should never again be a general tariff revision with its inevitable log-rolling. They would like to see all future tariff-making done by congress, but by a process of one schedule at a time.

PLANES COMPLETE NEW AIR ROUTE, NEW YORK-MIAMI

Miami, Fla., September 22.—(AP)—Delayed three hours and 35 minutes by clouds and hushers, three Bellanca six-passenger monoplanes, "The City of Raleigh," "The City of Columbia," and "The City of Savannah," arrived here at 6:35 p. m., at the municipal airport, ending the inaugural trip of the passenger and express air service which the Eastern Air Express, Inc., has scheduled to run twice weekly between New York and Miami.

The planes left Tampa early today for Daytona Beach because threatening weather made it inadvisable to attempt a direct route between Tampa and Miami. They were forced to land at Clear and await the weather to clear and again after arriving at Daytona Beach a wait was necessary. A third delay occurred when they stopped at Stuart for the skies to clear.

Another Eastern Air Express plane is due to arrive here this week, according to an announcement made shortly after landing at the municipal airport by P. G. H. Morris, executive vice president and operations manager of the organization.

A crowd of 2,000 persons assembled at the airport to greet the fliers began to disperse about 5 p. m., and only a few remained when the planes landed.

They will leave on the return trip to New York at 7 a. m. tomorrow, with the first stop at Jacksonville for gasoline.

Fifty houses collapsed in surrounding villages. Details of the earthquake still were meager tonight.

WEDDING SESSIONS FACE HOUSE UNTIL OCT. 14

Washington, September 22.—(AP)—The empty formality of meeting and adjourning twice a week for almost a month lay before the house as it prepared to obey at noon tomorrow the mandate of the resolution under which congress quit work in June for a mid-summer recess.

Forewarned that there would be no business transacted in the house before October 14, most of the members were continuing their vacation until that time and neither Speaker Longworth nor Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the majority leader, were in the city to preside over the session. One of the few members who have returned will wield the gavel for the brief meeting.

While the date for the house to settle down to work officially has been set for October 14, there is little prospect that it will have anything to do at that time. All of its work has been cleared away until the senate finishes with the tariff bill and leaders have indicated that the three-day recess probably will be continued beyond that period.

Speaker Longworth paid a brief visit to his office last week at which he arranged to continue his vacation.

RUSSIAN AIRPLANE REPORTED LANDED IN ALEUTIAN GROUP

Moscow, September 22.—(AP)—All Russia is holding that the country's pioneer international airplane, "Land of the Soviets," now is over the American territory and that the most difficult part of the long journey is over. (The latest report from the naval station at Bremerton, Washington, Saturday placed the plane off the Aleutian group, Alaska.)

As the airplane and motors are entirely of Soviet construction, the Russian plane is being followed by the achievements of Chief Pilot Shchegolev and his three companions. They feel that if the flight to New York is successful it will prove that Soviet planes are the equal of the best produced in other countries, even in long distance endurance flights.

Associated Press dispatches reporting the position of the plane on the various legs since departing from Moscow have been followed with extraordinary keen interest here.

While the belief is expressed that the most hazardous part of the flight is behind, it is recognized the airman still will face with many difficulties, as they must fly over an uncharted air route above rocky and unknown parts of the Aleutian Islands. After covering Unalaska, Kodiak, Pribilof and Sitka, the airman will replace the present sea floats on the chassis of the "Land of the Soviets" with wheels in Seattle, from where they will set out for New York.

The telegram said Wilkes was wanted on 14 misdemeanor charges resulting from issuance of 14 checks to farmers, payment of which was turned down by the bank.

Final Preparations for Nuptials Made on Eve of National Social Event at Plainville.

Plainville, Conn., September 22.—(AP)—Final preparations for the wedding tomorrow afternoon of Florence Trumbull, daughter of Governor John H. Trumbull, of Connecticut, and John Coolidge, son of former President Calvin Coolidge, were made today as florists, caterers and carpenters completed their plans.

The Congregational church where the ceremony will take place and the Trumbull home, which will be the scene of the wedding reception, will be transformed into bowers of autumnal beauty for the event.

More than 1,500 giant yellow chrysanthemums, transported from Florida by special car, will be used in the decoration of the church. Willow, poplars, smilax and palms are to complete the decoration scheme.

Bronze receptacles six feet tall, filled with the large chrysanthemums, will be spaced along the two aisles, closing in the center section where the 82 guests will be seated during the ceremony. Pyramid candelabra holding tall waxed tapers are to be placed in front of the pipe organ, which will be screened by masses of palms and smilax.

Chrysanthemum Plaque. The entry of the little church will be decorated by a plaque of chrysanthemums, the gift of the Trumbull family, surrounded by a bank of maidenhair ferns.

The home of Governor Trumbull also will be decorated with chrysanthemums ranging from pale yellow to burnt orange tints. If the weather permits the reception will be held on the extensive grounds surrounding the house, where tents already have been erected to supply refreshments for the 400 guests.

John Coolidge and his bride will receive those who come to wish them happiness in the sunken garden at the rear of the house.

Six silvered airplanes will surround the wedding cake which is to hold the center of the flower-decked bridal table. They will be adorned with a cake as a tribute to Governor Trumbull, the bride's father, whose interest in aviation has earned him the title of the "flying governor."

The cake is the handiwork of Isaac Fish, chief steward of the Shuttle Meadow Country Club, a Czecho-Slovakian who has known the Trumbull family for 15 years. It is to be 36 inches square, designed in tiers and coated with white frosting.

Gifts Unopened. Gifts have arrived at the Trumbull home in such large numbers that the bride and groom have been unable to open them. Those which have been opened fill three rooms on the second floor of the house and are constantly guarded by detectives.

Among them is a large silver bowl which bears the inscription, "Presented to Mr. John Coolidge on the occasion of his marriage by the heads of the diplomatic missions, Washington."

There are two dozen jars of vegetables, the gift of a former cook in the Trumbull household, and a lace centerpiece, given by a servant in the Coolidge home.

Oriental rugs, antique furniture, silverware and bric-a-brac comprise the rest of the gifts.

The wedding service, which is to be brief, will be conducted by the Reverend Kenneth Welles, of Albany, former pastor of the Congregational church, pastor of the Plainville Congregational church. Only relatives and intimate friends of the two families will witness the ceremony. Jean Trumbull will attend her sister as maid of honor and Mr. Stephan Brown, of Northampton, will act as John Coolidge's best man.

Coolidge To Attend. Ex-President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge are expected to arrive at the Trumbull home shortly before the ceremony and will proceed to the church with the bridal party.

John Coolidge, who arrived for the wedding rehearsal on Saturday, has been a week-end guest at the home of his bride. Members of the wedding party will be in the Trumbull home in the morning and friends of the Trumbull family.

Governor and Mrs. Trumbull were hosts to the wedding party today at a midday dinner given at the Shuttle Meadow Country Club and will entertain them at a buffet supper tonight in their home on Farmington avenue. Plans for the honeymoon of the bride and groom have not been revealed, although it is reported that they include a trip through New England and a visit to the Plymouth, Vermont, home of the Coolidges.

Uniform County School Report System Planned

Waynesboro, Ga., September 22.—(Special.)—A representative group of southeast Georgia counties, Burke, Jenkins, Jefferson, Bulloch, Screven and Emanuel, will meet at Milledgeville on Monday, September 30, for a conference with county school superintendents and principals of the high schools to work out a uniform system for the white schools of these six counties.

The leaders in the movement have pointed out that great educational strides have been made in this section of Georgia in the past few years but they feel that a definite scoring system will greatly help the schools of all these counties. Dr. Dugan has been invited to attend the conference. Other workers from over the state have also been invited.

WIFE, MOTHER GOES TO TRIAL FOR MURDER

Belair, Md., September 22.—(AP)—The stage was set here today for the opening tomorrow of the murder trial of Mrs. Hattie Stone, 40, of Havre De Grace, who was charged with causing the death from poison of her 15-year-old son, George Stone, last June. "I am ready for the trial," was the word coming from her cell in the county jail here, where she has been since her arrest three months ago.

An indictment was returned September 13. The accused woman elected to have the case heard by jury. Mrs. Stone was arrested June 13 after a chemist's report to the state indicated presence of poison in the viscera of her son, who died nine days before. Later the state examined the bodies of Edward Stone, her husband, and Edgar Stone, an older son, both of whom had died suddenly within the last two years. Convulsions and nausea were the symptoms of the final illness of the father and two boys.

Chemists reported presence of a small amount of poison in the viscera of the husband, but none in the older son. No action was taken by the grand jury, however, in connection with the death of the father.

METHODIST BOARD ATTACKS SMOKERS OF CIGARETTES

Washington, September 22.—(AP)—The board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church contends in its latest sheet issued today that "there are many people who believe that the time has come when congress should consider the propriety of protecting the American home and preserving to American parents the health education of their children by excluding from the radio and the United States mail all cigarette advertising."

Attacking what it says are the "outrageous and false claims as to the 'healthfulness' of cigarette smoking," the article adds that "there is not the slightest doubt that such proposed legislation would revive the support of millions of Americans."

Birmingham Fliers Jump To Safety As Plane Crashes

Birmingham, Ala., September 22.—(AP)—The Birmingham aviators, Lieutenant John Donaldson and Lieutenant Luther Johnson, escaped death by parachute leaps this afternoon when they jumped from their plane before it crashed into a wooded section about 12 miles south of here.

The aviators said they jumped from the plane after making a futile attempt to find a landing place when the battery went dead, killing the ship's motor.

The ship glided for about three miles after the fliers had dropped over the side. Donaldson was pilot and Johnson observer. They had gone up for a test flight.

WARM SPRINGS FRIENDS GREET GOV. ROOSEVELT

Warm Springs, Ga., September 22.—(Special.)—The governor of New York, Franklin D. Roosevelt, who arrived here late last night for a three weeks' vacation, today remained indoors as Georgia skies hung overcast all day. Several score friends of Governor and Mrs. Roosevelt called to welcome them.

The governor's party arrived here last night after a 45-mile motor trip from Newnan, where they left the train. Accompanying the governor and Mrs. Roosevelt were Miss M. A. LeLand, personal secretary; a New York state trooper and a New York city private detective.

The governor said he would give no attention to official business for at least three days, and after that would attend only to the most urgent affairs.

Governor Roosevelt said a speaking engagement, tentatively accepted to address the Kiwanis luncheon in Macon in about two weeks, probably would be his only deviation from routine during his stay here. His daily routine includes a swim in the Warm Springs pool in the morning, a rest hour after luncheon and exercises in the afternoon.

Wife To Return. Mrs. Roosevelt will return to New York in about 10 days to be present at the opening of the Todhunter School for Girls where she teaches a number of courses.

The governor expressed the opinion that public service commissions have lost their value as regulators of public utilities, a conclusion drawn, he said, from his recent opposition to the efforts of J. P. Morgan & Company, through subsidiary corporations, to obtain valuable hydroelectric sites on the St. Lawrence river in New York state.

"Democratic policy of New York state contemplates public ownership and control of production of hydroelectric power," Governor Roosevelt said, "while the republicans policy has favored private ownership under regulation by public service commissions. The state owns half the St. Lawrence river from its shore line to the international boundary that traverses the geographical center of the stream. I am fully convinced that the public should handle the production of hydroelectric power, and possibly its transmission, but that distribution may well be put in the hands of private enterprises under public control, to insure the lowest possible rates to consumers. The Canadian province of Ontario handles its hydro-electric development somewhat in this fashion, owning the production and transmission facilities, while the actual distribution is in the hands of the municipalities and sometimes of the counties. It is all public ownership, however. Consumers in the province of Ontario get their electric current for a price which is the price paid by consumers on the American side of the border, although the Niagara river at Niagara Falls is the source of the hydro-electric power on both sides. Power is produced, transmitted and distributed by private enterprise on the American side, however. Public ownership means something to the people of Ontario."

$1,500.00 BUICK SEDAN
---in a simple, fascinating competition

Your Answer

Any man, woman, boy or girl, resident of Georgia or adjoining states, who is not an employee of The Atlanta Constitution, or a member of an employee's family, may submit an answer. When you have made your selection of the twins, send in your answer.

The whole family may cooperate in this competition, but only one prize will be awarded a member of a family, or any one of a group outside of the family where two or more have been working together for a prize in any one prize group; but one person may win one prize in each of the three prize groups and also have a chance of winning the $1,500.00 automobile for promptness. This contest is conducted by The Atlanta Constitution.

Clues

At first glance all the young ladies look alike; but you are asked to find the Twins that are clothed exactly alike. Now then: upon closer examination you will find a difference in their wearing apparel. Have they all earrings or necklaces? How about their coats and hats? Are they trimmed the same? Some have bands on the brim and crowns, others have not. Maybe the difference is just the buttonhole in the lapel of the coat.

Just look closely—make sure that you have found the Twins, then send in your answer. Somebody who finds the right twins is going to win a big cash prize of $500.00, $1,000.00, or $2,500.00—or better still, $4,000.00 cash and a $1,500.00 Buick automobile for promptness, a total of $5,500.00—and that some one may be and can be you if you will only try.

No, they are not all Twins! Two and only two are identical, and are the Twins you are asked to find. Can you? To be sure, the 18 pictures all look alike; but look closer. How about their hats? They are not all clothed the same. Many young ladies look alike, and the 18 on this page look like each other, but the Twins are dressed exactly the same, like all real twins. Read the clues.

It takes real care and cleverness to point out the difference and find the two real Twins, because two and only two are identical the same.

Dallas Wins Texas Play-Off, Will Meet Barons in Dixie Series

CLEMSON'S START IS IMPRESSIVE

DALLAS WINS TEXAS SERIES; MEETS BARONS

Steers Take Deciding Game From Spudders, 2-1, To Cap Flag.

By Gayle Talbot, Jr.

Dallas, Texas, September 22.—(AP)—Victor Frasier, 20, and blessed with the iron nerve of a veteran, pitched the Dallas Steers to the 1929 Texas league pennant here today when he let the Wichita Falls Spudders down with five scattered hits and beat them, 2 to 1, in the fourth game of the play-off series.

More than 18,000 fans roared their approval as the rookie star turned in his second victory of the series over the Spudders. He chose the colorful setting to hurl probably the greatest game of his short but brilliant career. Only one of the Steers' blows was clean. The other four were through the Steer inner defense. Only three balls were hit to the Mavrick outfielders. Ten Spudders took three outs at the youngster's smothered and retired to the dugout.

For the second time in the series Frasier was opposed by the crafty Andy Messenger, and he again shaded the submarine artist. Both Dallas runs were scored off Messenger before he retired for a pinch batsman in the eighth, but only one of them was earned. He whiffed three.

Victory today gave the Steers an additional day of rest before they clash with the Birmingham Barons, Southern association champions, in the first game of the Dixie series Wednesday.

Manager Milt Stock and his triumphant crew will leave here at 11 a. m. tomorrow for the Alabama city. Although no special train has been chartered, many Dallas fans were expected to accompany the club to Birmingham.

Miller Huggins Is Seriously Ill

New York, September 22.—(AP)—Miller Huggins, manager of the New York Yankees, is a patient at St. Vincent's hospital. It is known today. His condition was reported to be serious.

Huggins was taken to the hospital Friday, suffering supposedly from an attack of influenza. At the hospital tonight it was said he was suffering from an infection of the face following influenza. He was reported to be resting somewhat easier tonight, with a slightly lower temperature, but his condition was said to be still serious. Dr. Edward W. King, who is attending him, has called a consultation for tomorrow.

Huggins will be unable to go to the opening game of the series between the Yankees and the White Sox Thursday. He plans to see no more baseball games this year, having arranged to go directly to St. Petersburg, Fla., upon his discharge from the hospital.

Notes from the book on a forecasting tour of part of the Southern conference. In no time now the prophesying season will have closed and the second-guessing epoch will follow, immediately after scores of the first games are published:

The biggest news stories of the season were the defection of "Father" Lumpkin from Tech Flats and the barring of Gerald Walker, from Ole Miss.

A huge sigh of relief arose on the September air when these two announcements were exploded. At Chapel Hill, at New Orleans, at Nashville, at Tuscaloosa, at Auburn and in Athens the news of Lumpkin's departure was received with mingled emotions, mostly relief.

They do not quite believe it yet. Coaches who should understand such matters wag a finger and insist Lumpkin will be back in there in time for the game. Here and there crocodile tears were shed; some of the boys actually tried to deplore his loss.

GOOD-BYE, GOOD LUCK.

At least three Conference camps—Tennessee, Vanderbilt and Alabama—were equally relieved that the great Ole Miss halfback had departed.

Vandy, Tennessee and Alabama have early season games with Ole Miss and with Walker in there as a triple threat back, it was very, very probable that Ole Miss might have won going away.

Coach Homer Hazel has a pretty strong team left, but it is believed his great threat faded when Walker was declared ineligible.

THE OLD SPIRIT.

The quaintest reaction to the Lumpkin deal came from a Georgia halfback—a lad who could not weigh over 145 pounds nor stand over five feet six in his cleated shoes.

"Gee, that's tough," he said savagely. "Two years ago in the freshman game, that big stiff blocked me out of play while I wasn't looking and I just wanted to get one more chance to sock him."

POP WARNER'S DOPE.

Jimmy De Hart at Duke was talking the other day about the improved calibre of Southern football.

"Just after I got out of Pitt," Jimmy said, "I had an offer from University of Georgia to come down and coach. I asked Pop Warner about it. Pop said:

"Go South, son. The South and California within 10 years will be leading America in producing football teams. The weather is ideally suited for spring practice and the pure Anglo Saxon types predominate in the material. With prep school coaching improving the future great teams are bound to come from Dixie and from the coast. Eventually those sections will leave the east and middle west tagging behind. Get in on the ground floor, son."

Jimmy has followed that advice. He has turned down offers from the east to stay in the south. And old Pop himself is out in California.

SOONER OR LATER.

Believe it or not until last week Chapel Hill had not seen a yo-yo. When I produced one (Oh, yes, second childhood and all that) the Irish coaching staff guffawed and made uncomplicated remarks.

After practice, Rex Enright could hold in no longer. He borrowed mine. He kept it. And when I shoved off to catch a train in Durham he was still standing in the coaches dressing room, clad only in the yo-yo, trying to make it work.

A wire is at hand now from Bill Cerney and Enright asking where they can order 2,000. They have the university concession sewed up.

WHICH REMINDS ME—SEVERAL OF THE NEW SMALL SIZE BILLS WERE SEEN IN NASHVILLE LAST WEEK.

WARNING WASTED.

No better conclusion can be appended to this installment than to reproduce a portion of Bill Keefe's column in the New Orleans Times Picayune.

It all goes to show that often our greatest mental feats, our most acrobatic efforts to be frank and earnest—both at the same time—go for naught. And we are called sob sisters, Brother Blake, Dr. Burns and the writer.

Bill was riled when he wrote:

"Atlanta's entire army of sob sisters is already in mid-season form shedding tears over the prospects of a team at Georgia Tech this year. Just at present, the object of the tears and Atlanta's war correspondents have been sent here to look Tulane over and they have flashed back to Atlanta the most colorful stories of the formidable team poor little Tech will meet here October 26. . . . It's the same old bunkum. Take it from this writer. Georgia Tech—her players and her alumni—have no more fear of Tulane beating Georgia Tech than they have of Georgia Tech losing every game on her schedule. Tulane has a much better-looking team than she had last year and Tech, we'll agree, hasn't such a powerful-looking machine this season as she had last. But it isn't the surest thing in the world that the youngsters who step into the shoes of Tech's departed champions will not arise to the occasion and become super-greats themselves.

"If Tulane beats Georgia Tech October 26, the Tulane team of 1925 will be forgotten, because this year's team will be the greatest football aggregation Tulane ever had. Paste that little prediction up with your schedule."

Maybe Bill Keefe has surrendered but the Tulane people had not when I saw them last. And at Tech Flats: Ask The Man which teams he fears most. If he does not name Tulane first, I'll take a jack-knife from the top of Stone Mountain.

CAMPOLO, SCOTT FIGHT TONIGHT AT NEW YORK

Critics Favor Scott To Beat Campolo, Big Argentine Contender.

New York, September 22.—(AP)—Despite the feather-weight championship battle between Andre Routis of France and Bat Battalino at Hartford, first honors for banner fistic attractions this week must go to New York.

Metropolitan fans will have a chance to see two heavyweight shows involving four more or less legitimate contenders for the long vacant heavyweight throne.

Starting off the week will be Humbert Fugazy's ten-round offering at Ebbett's field tomorrow night between Phil Scott of England and Victorio Campolo of the Argentine. On Thursday Madison Square Garden offers the much-ballyhooed fray between Jack Sharkey and Tommy Loughran, erstwhile king of the light heavyweights, at the Yankee stadium.

Some critics contend that the chances are there will be more fireworks in the Campolo-Scott fight than in the Yankee stadium affair. Campolo, some six and a half feet tall, has attracted a great following as a result of his recent triumph over Tom Heeney. His rival of tomorrow night, Scott, is one of the finest boxers among the heavyweights. Generally speaking, boxing experts believe the Englishman has a good chance of outpointing his gigantic South American foe provided he can keep a somewhat fragile jaw out of Campolo's reach.

Sharkey has been established a slight favorite over Loughran for their battle Thursday night. The Boston heavyweight is one of the most erratic performers in the business. On occasion he has appeared a "sure thing" to win the championship. At others it has been doubtful whether he deserved to rank any higher than among the second raters. Although word has come from Loughran's training camp that the Philadelphia has found a punch at last and will use it to the dismay of Mr. Sharkey, somewhat cynical observers declare they won't believe it until they see it with their own eyes.

Supporting the 15-round main bout will be a ten-rounder between Jimmy Maloney, of Boston, and Armand Emanuel, California, heavyweight. Tom Heeney will clash with George Hoffman, of New York, in the first ten.

The Chicago stadium offers another all-star card on Friday night. Tony Canzoneri, ex-featherweight champion, meets Eddie Mack, of Denver, a law student at Loyola university, Chicago, in the top ten-rounder. Benny Bass, Philadelphia junior lightweight, is matched with Johnny Datto, of Cleveland, in the secondary feature.

George Courtney, Oklahoma light heavyweight, meets Billy Jones, of Philadelphia, in the ten-rounder at Philadelphia Tuesday night. Other bouts on the national schedule include: At Louisville, Jackie Cohen, New York, vs. Cecil Payne, Louisville, featherweights, ten rounds; at New York, Queensboro stadium, Freddie Mueller, Buffalo, vs. Ruby Goldstein, New York, welterweights, ten rounds.

Wednesday—At Cincinnati, Spug Meyers, Toledo, Idaho, vs. Vince Hambright, Cincinnati, welterweights, ten rounds.

Friday—At Toledo, Soldier Dombrowski, Detroit, vs. Babe Keller, Toledo, featherweights, ten rounds; at Columbus, Jimmy Reed, Columbus, vs. Jackie Dugan, Louisville, lightweights, ten rounds.

Roby Presents Fight Tonight

Henry Johnson, the colored middle-weight boxing champion of the south, will make another appearance before the local fan tonight when he meets Bob Hunter in the 10-round main event of Promoter Elvay Roby's card at the Roby gym.

Johnson's first appearance here stopped the winning streak of Happy Hunter, who had run up a total of 17 straight knockouts before his fight with the champion. The card tonight will be the last Roby will hold in his gym before the big fight next month in the city auditorium in which California's Joe Gans will appear in the main event.

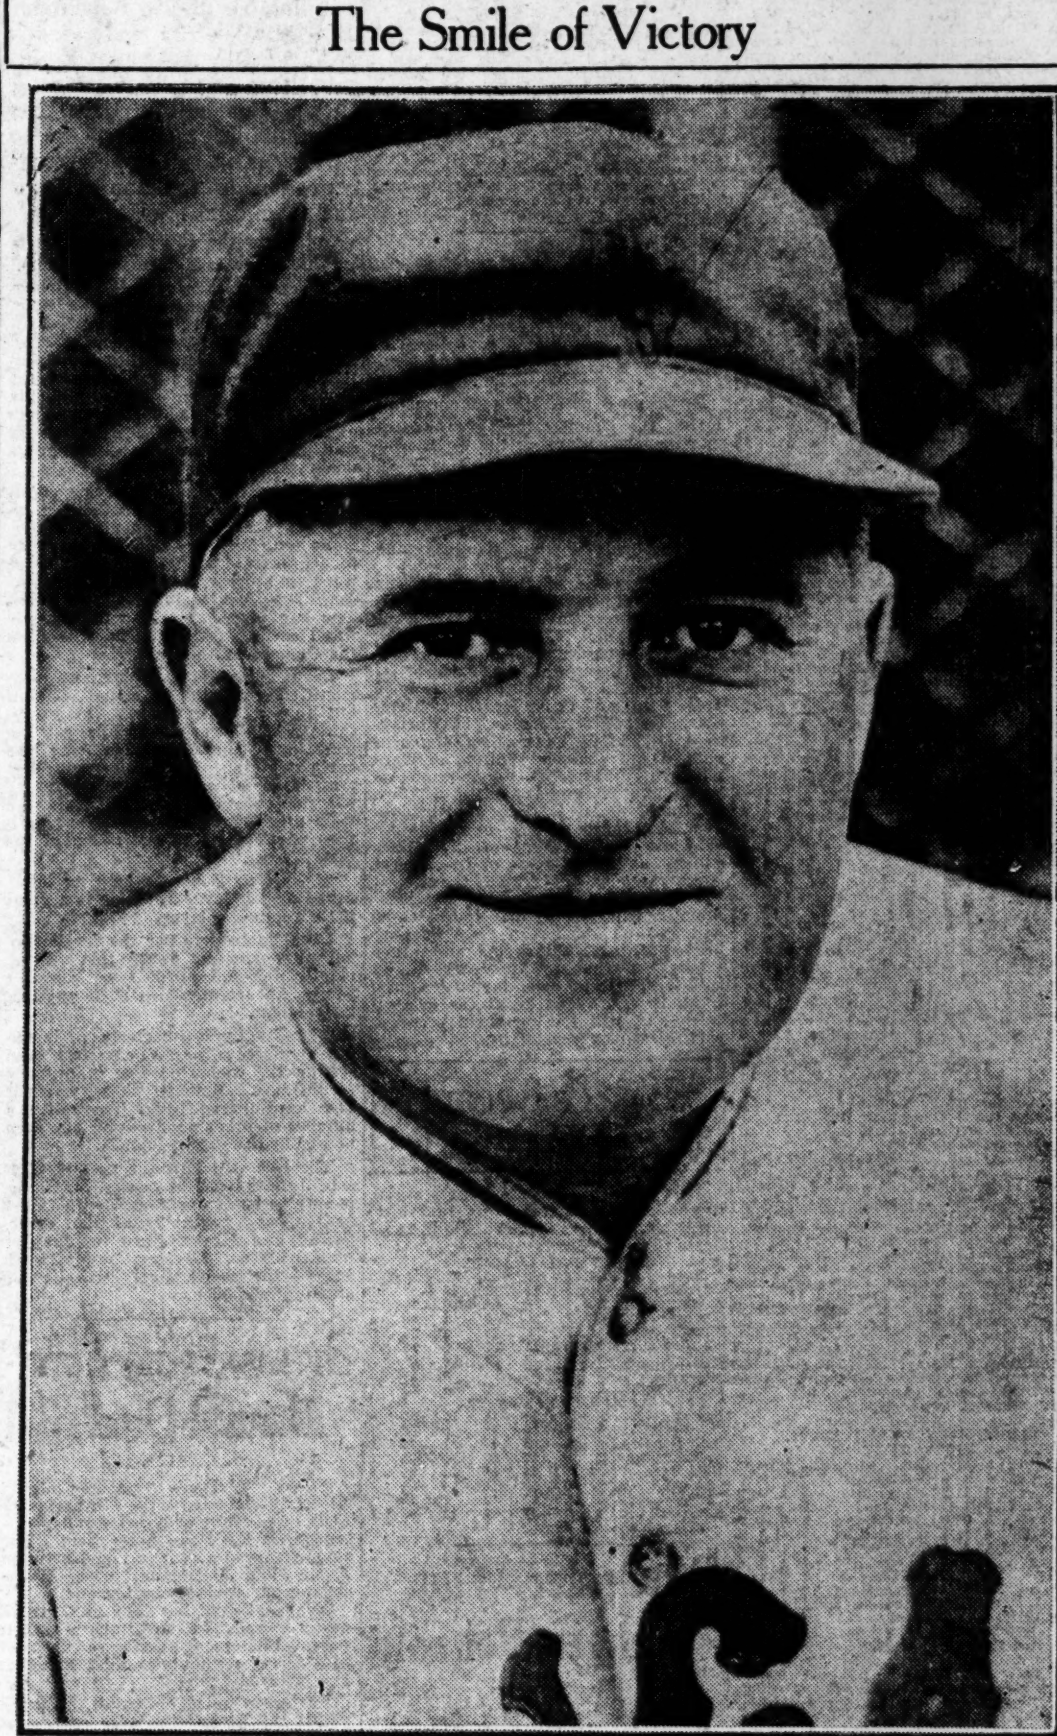

Other fighters on tonight's card include Cowboy Kid, Babe Combs, Gary Jones, Tommy Stafford, Kid Moon and Black Jack. The show will open with battle royal at 8:30. Roby's gym is located at 381-2 Decatur street.

U. S. Open Dates Are Moved Back

New York, September 22.—(AP) The 1930 United States open golf championship at the Interlachen Club, Minneapolis, will be played on July 10, 11 and 12, two weeks later than the 1929 event at the Winged Foot Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y. H. H. Ramsey, chairman of the United States Golf Association, announced today.

The later date has been made necessary because the British event will come five weeks later than it did last year. The British event is to open on June 16. Not only will a number of the country's leading pros make their bid for the British title but most of the first-rank amateurs as well.

The Walker cup amateur team matches between England and the United States are to be played on British soil next year and members of the American squad will be entered, as usual, in the British open.

Joe McCarthy, manager of the champion Chicago Cubs, is shown above smiling the smile of victory. He piloted the Bruins through one of the hottest battles in the history of the National league and came out on top. His club will meet the Philadelphia Athletics in the world's series.

HORSE GUARDS TRIP FORT, 10-6

Improved Attack of Winners Proves Too Much for Macs.

Playing for perhaps the last time this year, the Governor's Horse Guards galloped to a 10-6 victory over Port McPherson Sunday afternoon.

The teams played on even terms until the Horse Guards, with Christian scoring two goals to lead the way, made four goals in succession before Port McPherson could overcome the deficit.

This week the McPherson team, with the rest of the outfit, will move down the field. Moran set the ball up for Christian, who shoved it in. Wing scored for McPherson and Moran followed to send the Guards ahead.

In the second, Moran hit the ball in from his own back line, took it down, Love picked it up, and then Wing backed the ball. It hit the hoof of Moran's horse and was kicked down the field. Moran set the ball up for Christian, who shoved it in. Wing scored for McPherson and Moran followed to send the Guards ahead.

In the third, the Horse Guards seemingly couldn't be stopped. After Wing, aided by Shubert, tied it at 3-3, Love whinnied in a beautiful shot to be followed by Christian, who made a good carry. Shortly afterward the Guards worked the ball down the field. Love took out Tolson and Christian shoved it in. Then Christian and Gay went down, with Gay scoring.

Fine team play brought three goals for the Guards in the fourth, with Gay and Christian, helped by Love and Moran, scoring.

In the fifth, Moran sent in Williamson in his place and Graham went in for Christian. The combination didn't work so well and Tolson, following the ball like a hawk, herded two shots across the goal line and Wing sent one in.

The Walker cup amateur team matches between England and the United States are to be played on British soil next year and members of the American squad will be entered, as usual, in the British open.

Conference Heads To See Night Game

Jacket Freshman Game Saturday Will Influence Next Year's Schedule

Georgia Tech's football game with the freshman, scheduled for next Saturday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, is quite likely to become in many respects the most significant football game played this year.

It will be played before representatives of each member of the Southern conference, here for the annual fall meeting. The general public will also be admitted. It will do much toward determining the fate of night football in the south.

Georgia Tech's magnificent lighting plant, which illuminates the entire playing field and stadium with a diffused light, makes night football practical. The conference representatives will witness the game and carry back reports to their own universities.

Tech will play no night game this fall unless one of the opponents agrees to it. In 1930, however, Tech will play at least two, and probably three or four, night football games.

SLATED SATURDAY. Tech football officials are considering playing the game on Friday evening. If this change is made an effort will be made to have all the conference representatives here for the contest. Unless further announcement is made the game will take place Saturday evening as scheduled.

Most night games that have been played in the south have had equipment not nearly as complete as that at Tech Flats.

The ordinary procedure is to erect poles in front of the stands. Lights with reflectors are placed on top of the poles. The audience is left in darkness. At Tech the stands are lighted so that a newspaper may be read in any section. There is no glare, no reflection.

The night game has come to stay. Probably two-thirds of the October games next fall will be played at night. The Tech system is sure to be followed at other institutions as soon as the practicability of the plan is demonstrated.

Baseball Owners Plan Shorter Season. Baseball, which for a time appeared to be trying to keep right on until a game was being played over in a corner of the Rose Bowl at the time of the annual New Year's Day game at Pasadena, has seen the light. It may be that someone broke a Mazda over the noggin of some of the owners, but, at any rate, a light has been seen.

The baseball season will be shorter. In an effort to keep old John Public marching up to the window until he has seen the light, the owners have decided to shorten the season.

There have been numerous rumors regarding a successor for Hendricks, the club management said nothing would be done until the conclusion of the world's series. Both Donnie Bush, who resigned the managerial position at Pittsburgh several weeks ago, and Clarence Rowland, manager of the Nashville club of the Southern association, have been mentioned as probable pilots, but there has been no official statement regarding either.

THREE DIXIE ELEVENS PLAY NIGHT GAMES

Nocturnal Sport Success; No Real Upsets on Opening Day.

By Ralph McGill.

Now that the returns are all in it appears that no worms turned on any of the football fields Saturday.

They all succumbed under the cleats of superior opponents and dropped back to meet members in their own class. The autumnal sacrifice is a part of the annual autumnal program for the little fellows.

Josh Cody earned the opponents in the Southern conference what to expect when he rolled up 68 points against Newberry. Cody used 35 men and the Clemson machine never lost the scoring touch.

Now, 68 points is a respectable number of points even if scored against Aunt Emma in a parol game. When 35 men participate in a game and keep the score mounting it means that they have worked long enough to establish more than a medium of team work. Clemson's performance was the most impressive and significant one of the more than 20 games played Saturday.

NIGHT FOOTBALL. Night football got its first tests of the fall. Dad Amis' Furman eleven taking Erskine by a 19-to-6 score in one of three night games. The game was played successfully on a field illuminated with 14 powerful lights.

Those proponents of the nocturnal game will find encouragement in that feature. Tech's lighting system has 48 powerful lights. Furman used reflectors. Tech's lighting system makes no shadows and produces a diffused light without reflectors. Spectators at ordinary games are seated behind the poles bearing the lights. Tech's system lights the entire stands.

AMIS HOLDS BACK. Dad Amis used numerous substitutes. This is the first time he has looked ahead to Chattanooga on the following week. He was holding out on scouts.

Loyola (New Orleans) defeated St. Edwards at night with a packed grandstand looking on. Lexington, Ky., saw night football, Transylvania beating Cedarville.

Opponents of the night game got small, if any, comfort from the reports of the first night games. They were all successfully conducted. The New Orleans report said that the "daylight enthusiasm" was lacking. That was undoubtedly due to the lighting system. Much enthusiasm must be seen to be appreciated. And much of it is bottled.

NIGHT GAMES. At least two-thirds of the October games in 1930 will be played in the evening. The night game is catching hold fast. Equipment such as Georgia Tech has installed will convince even the skeptics.

In other games played Saturday the V. M. I. cadets, the second Southern conference team to see action, defeated Hampton University.

Chattanooga, champions of the S. I. A. A. last fall, took the Tennessee State Teachers into camp by a large score. The Teachers were defeated 40 to 0, scrimmaged with Vanderbilt last Thursday in preparation for the game and showed but little.

HIGHEST SCORE. Transylvania rolled up the biggest score of the day with 70 points made against Cedarville. High scores were the rule Saturday. These early games are very valuable to any team which is seeking to be up among the scoring leaders when the curtain falls in December.

Emory and Henry, undefeated for two seasons, won its 21st game by beating Rutherford college 50 to 0. Emory and Henry has made no effort to break into the big headlines but stays very much in its own class.

In the southwest Ray Morrison's S. M. U. Mustangs at Dallas had a difficult time beating Denton college 13 to 0.

The far west saw Pop Warner's spin plays give Stanford a victory over the West Coast Army team. Oregon, which plays Florida this season, opened with an easy victory over Williamette.

ONE UPSET. There was one upset—just by way of reminding everyone that a shadow of Drexel, which is at Philadelphia, was defeated by Westchester Normal. Hence the first nightshirt parade of the year.

West Virginia beat an old rival—West Virginia Wesleyan. Rhode Island won. So did a lot of others playing in the smaller conferences.

There is even more action next Saturday. Practically all the S. I. A. A. and half the Southern conference teams get into action. In the south the Vanderbilt-Mississippi game is the feature for this week. The east has no feature games featuring the schedules of the "big" teams.

This coming Saturday is the last of the warm-ups. October 5 will find all the football multitude going down under kick-offs.

Promoter Still Sought by Police

New Orleans, September 22.—(AP) A police dragnet had failed tonight to unearth Frankie Edwards, the prize fight promoter who disappeared from the ringside with $20,000 of the box-office receipts while Tony Canzoneri was pounding Eddie Wolff in a lively lightweight go at Heinemann park.

Rumors filled the air but the police said tonight they had not found a single fertile lead and the promoter was gone as if he had dropped off the face of the earth. The police have literally scoured New Orleans during the last 36 hours and feel convinced that Edwards left the city shortly after leaving his home at 11 o'clock Friday night.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

A RACE FOR LIFE.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Foolish he who ever will take Chances with his life at stake.
—Old Mother Nature.

For some unknown reason Peter Rabbit was one of the last of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows to learn of Flip, the new member of Farmer Brown's family. Peter usually knows all that is going on. If there are any strange dogs about Peter usually knows it. But Flip the Terrier had been living at Farmer Brown's for some time before Peter Rabbit found out about it. Perhaps that was because Peter had been remaining at home in the dear Old Briar-patch more than usual. Peter finally learned about Flip by unexpectedly meeting him.

Peter had been over in the Green Forest and he was later than usual in starting for home. In fact, it was broad daylight when Peter reached the edge of the Old Orchard. He didn't know whether to venture to cross the Green Meadows or to remain where he was. A glimpse of one of the Hawk family sailing over the Green Meadows settled the question for him.

"I'll spend the old stone wall to hide in," said Peter to himself. So he hopped along until he reached a certain favorite place in the bushes beside the old stone wall. There he sat down and prepared to take a nap. Right behind him was a hole between the stones of the wall. Peter had used it many times. He felt quite as safe in there as he would in the dear Old Briar-patch. He spent most of the day dozing and was undisturbed. Once Striped Chipmunk came along the old wall, but stopped only long enough to say, "Hello Peter!" then frisked along on his way.

Late in the afternoon Peter grew hungry. On the farther side of the Old Orchard was a patch of sweet clover. Peter knew all about it. He decided he would go over and get some of it. He looked this way, he looked that way, to make sure that the way was clear. It was. Away he went. He slipped off the old stone wall and landed on his back. He was so dizzy that he couldn't see. He lay there for a few minutes he was enjoying himself as only Peter can when he is filling his big stomach with his favorite food. For a while he quite forgot everything else.

He had eaten about all that he could when he discovered some one coming between the apple trees. Peter sat up very straight that he might see better. "It's Bowser, the Hound," muttered Peter. "Well, he can't catch me, so I'll all right. I can get over the old stone wall ahead of Bowser without half trying. Perhaps he won't discover me. I'll remain perfectly still. If he doesn't find my tracks with that wouderful nose of his, he isn't likely to see me at all."

Then Peter let his legs out, so to speak.

So Peter crouched as flat down as he could. He couldn't watch Bowser when he was crouched down, but he, himself, was less likely to be seen. It was because he was crouched down this way that he didn't see Flip the Terrier. When Peter had sat up, Flip had happened to be behind a tree. So it was that Bowser was very near Peter when he discovered Peter's scent.

"Bow, wow!" roared Bowser in his great voice.

Peter knew it was time to go. He jumped up like a flash and off he started, lurching lurching, for the old stone wall. Bowser couldn't run fast enough to catch him before he could get there and Peter knew it, so at first he didn't hurry. But suddenly there was a sharp bark from behind Bowser, and looking back, Peter saw a small black and white dog coming like the wind. Then Peter let his legs out, so to speak. How he did run! As he ran he rolled his eyes back and discovered to his dismay that little dog, which, of course, was Flip, was gaining on him. He suddenly realized that he was in a race for life. It was a question if he could reach that old stone wall before Flip could catch him.

He did reach that old stone wall, but Flip was right at his heels when Peter dived into that hole. Indeed, he could reach that old stone wall before Flip could catch him.

Tower's "Best" Given Newcomers By Jail Inmates

In the Fulton tower there are observed several customs which to those outside "the big rock" are unknown.

One of them provides that the man in the "toughest spot" shall have the best obtainable from his fellow prisoners.

Alvin E. Merritt is in a cage of six cells. As soon as he heard his first death sentence a fellow prisoner gave up to him the newest and best "bunk." He was the only man in the cell under sentence of death.

Last week there came to the cage Eugene C. Peek, a lawyer, under indictment for uttering worthless checks, larceny after trust, etc. Merritt very promptly gave Peek his bunk.

"But, why?" Peek asked. "Keep your bunk for yourself."

"Well, I've been here so long I'm used to it," the condemned north side "fiend" answered. Merritt has been in jail since February 9.

Peek took the bunk and Sunday reported himself "getting used to it."

He has been unable to furnish $17,200 bond.

Perry To Speak At Southern Bell Cornerstone Rite

J. A. Perry, chairman of the Georgia public service commission, has accepted an invitation to speak Wednesday morning at the cornerstone-laying of Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company's new building, to be erected at Ivy street and Auburn avenue. Others who will speak at the ceremonies are Mayor Ragsdale, Philip H. Alston and Ben S. Read, president of the company. The Rev. N. R. High Moor will open and close the exercises with appropriate invocation and benediction. Gregory C. Bowden, district manager of the company will preside.

The building now in course of construction will be six stories in size. It will cost $1,250,000 exclusive of land and equipment and will be the first unit of a mammoth 25-story building which it is expected will occupy this site during the next few years.

The initial building will be used largely for long distance purposes and toll switchboard will contain enormous quantities of associated equipment and apparatus. This will include, for the long-distance and other cables which carry telephone circuits extending from Atlanta in all directions to all sections of this country. There will also be repeaters, amplifiers and other intricate apparatus which make it possible to talk from Atlanta across the Atlantic to London, Paris and 21 foreign countries.

The foundations and columns of the initial building are designed to carry a building which will rise 400 feet above the street level. This height is equivalent to the usual office building of at least 38 stories, but in view of the high ceilings required for modern telephone equipment it is only possible to provide 25 stories in the ultimate structure.

Mrs. Harrington Will Assist In 'Forget-Me-Not' Campaign

Mrs. Eugene Harrington, prominent Atlantan, assistant chairman of the "Forget-Me-Not" campaign next Wednesday, when nearly a thousand young Atlanta women will sell for get-me-nots for the fund to assist disabled American veterans of the world war.

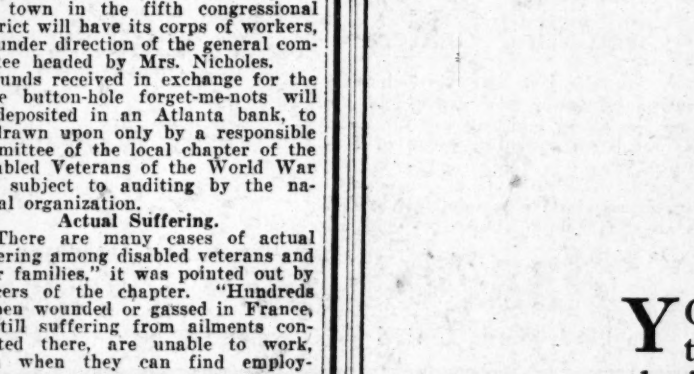

If any Atlanta business man or woman shopper or hurrying theatergoer next Wednesday has "forgotten" there was a World War "there will be plenty of reminders, for every street corner and office building, every suburban business community, will have its group of women offering forget-me-nots, the little emblem of the war. Not in years has a "drive" taken on so much interest in advance of the day according to the number of workers volunteering to help the disabled veterans of the World War. A few days ago there were 100 women's organizations, represented by nearly a thousand workers. Yesterday the list of organizations was swelled by 10, each offering a committee to spend the day upon the streets.

Money Collected. Flowers, baskets and for the "Forget-Me-Not" Day drive will be distributed to the committees on Tuesday, at the Haverly store, it is announced by Mrs. H. M. Nicholas, general chairman. They can be obtained there at any hour between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. The money collected during Wednesday's drive will be delivered to the tellers committee at the Atlanta & Lowry National bank, at Pryor street and Edgewood avenue, where it will be deposited.

Besides the original 100 women's organizations providing workers for "Wednesday's" campaign, the following were listed yesterday afternoon, with their chairmen: Benteen Civic Club, Mrs. John M. Boyle; Benteen Parent-Teacher Association; Canton, U. D. C. chapter, Mrs. J. N. Smith; A. A. Sisterhood, Mrs. F. M. Constancy; Fulton Chapter, U. D. C., Mrs. Grady Andrews; Forget-Me-Not Club, Mrs. A. T. Owings; Auxiliary American Legion, Not only Atlanta and suburbs, but virtually every town in the fifth congressional district will have its corps of workers, under the leadership of the general committee headed by Mrs. Nicholas.

Funds received in exchange for the little button-hole forget-me-nots will be deposited in the Atlanta bank, to be drawn upon only by a responsible committee of the local chapter of the Disabled Veterans of the World War and subject to auditing by the national organization.

Actual Suffering. "There are many cases of actual suffering among disabled veterans and their families," it was pointed out by officers of the chapter. "Hundreds of men wounded or gassed in France, or still suffering from ailments contracted there, are unable to work, even when they can find employ-

RUTH H. MCCORMICK IS SENATE CANDIDATE

Congresswoman Announces She Will Ask Illinois Post in Upper House.

Byron, Ill., September 22.—(AP)—Ruth Hanna McCormick, congresswoman-at-large from Illinois and daughter of the late Senator Mark Hanna, today announced her candidacy for the republican nomination for the United States senate in opposition to the present senior Illinois senator, Charles S. Deneen.

Mrs. McCormick is the widow of Senator Medill McCormick, who died in 1925. Her announcement is looked upon as the probable opening of the republican primary campaign for the senate. Senator Deneen, who succeeded Mr. McCormick, is expected to announce his candidacy soon for re-nomination.

Others who have been mentioned as prospective candidates are Lieutenant-Governor Fred E. Sterling, of Rockford, Ill., who has been campaigning quietly for several weeks, and Attorney-General Edward J. Brundage, Cook county (Chicago) leader.

Attorney-General Brundage, it is retorted, probably will announce his candidacy on a prohibition platform as outlined by the Hoover enforcement committee.

Mrs. McCormick is the first woman in Illinois who has aspired for a seat in the United States senate. She has long been active in politics and was congresswoman-at-large by a plurality of more than 600,000. This demonstration of strength is generally conceded to have brought her prominence to the fore as a senatorial possibility.

NO SURPRISE IN WASHINGTON.

Washington, September 22.—(AP)—Capital political leaders received with interest but without surprise the announcement today by Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, representative from Illinois, that she would oppose Senator Charles S. Deneen for the republican senatorial nomination next spring.

One of the few women to aspire to the senate, Mrs. McCormick is seeking the seat held by her late husband, Medill McCormick, in the chamber where her father, Senator Mark Hanna, of Ohio, long a republican leader, once served.

As the wife and daughter of these republican senators, Mrs. McCormick is a familiar figure in Washington, where she has been for the last few months in her own right a member of the house.

Her contest against Senator Deneen had been speculated upon in political circles for some time. It was he who defeated the late Senator McCormick for re-nomination six years ago. Deneen is now just ending that term.

McCormick died shortly before Mrs. McCormick took office in the senate. She was elected to the senate by a landslide in 1922.

McCormick would be the first woman to win her way to the senate by a campaign. One other woman has served in the senate, Mrs. W. H. Felton, of Georgia, who was appointed by the governor in Georgia in 1922 to fill a vacancy. She served but a few hours before voluntarily retiring.

Gas Made Her Dizzy Staggers Like Drunk

"I had stomach gas so bad I would get dizzy and stagger. Adlerika has made my bowels regular and has surely helped my stomach."—Mrs. E. Bundy.

Adlerika, a simple glycerin, buck-thorn bark, saline compound, acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and brings out foul matter you would never believe was in your system. This old matter may have poisoned you for months and caused GAS, sour stomach, headache or nervousness.

Try this simple proof: Take any medicine which acts on lower bowel only—most laxatives do. After your bowels have moved, take Adlerika and in a short time you will be astonished at how much MORE sour, old matter and GAS is brought out! Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika checks the growth of intestinal bacteria."

Dr. J. Weaver: "In my 50 years' practice, I have found nothing to excel Adlerika."

J. E. Puckett: "After using Adlerika I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated."

Give your stomach and bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel! Just ONE spoonful relieves GAS and chronic constipation. At leading druggists. Send for FREE checkbook. ADLERIKA, Dept. P-37, St. Paul, Minn.—(adv.)

More time to play

YOU can always find people to tell you that the country is going to the dogs because we're doing so much playing.

"When did your grandmother find any time to play? There was a woman for you!"

No doubt.

Just the same, we'd like to have given her a vacuum cleaner, a washing machine, electric lights, running hot water, a telephone, baker's bread, delicious canned foods, an automobile and a set of golf clubs.

Can you picture grandfather's face? ... "Gone to the country club. Look in the ice-box."

Through advertising, science is giving us more and more time to play. Advertising is knocking minutes off every phase of household work from cooking to shopping, to give us leisure hours.

... and we're just using them as grandmother would have if she'd had the chance.

Read the advertising here in The Constitution.

It will bring you more time to play.

INSTALLMENT XXV.
UP TO SOME TRICKS.

Cecily was moving toward the door and Douglas nodded approvingly.

"We'd better not be together too long," he remarked. "By the way, I'm Doug Harris here. No one else. You understand?"

"Do you mean they don't know?"

"Precisely. I've only got to go back to myself—to make a clean getaway. Our future isn't quite hopeless. The day after tomorrow I shall come and see you at your father's flat—as myself—and I shall ask how we stand. . . . Meanwhile you'd better lie down and get all the rest you can."

With one hand on the door she hesitated.

"Suppose they've been eavesdropping our conversation."

"They will have learned nothing they don't know—except that I'm going to take you away tonight and they were bound to get to know that anyway. Wait. I'd better come back with you to wherever they keep you."

"Just the other side of a sort of courtyard affair," she told him. "They don't lock the door. I can walk out wherever I like—but I mustn't go into that factory of theirs. I wonder what it is they make!"

"You can make a pretty good guess. Dope, of course!"

"And you're going to take a cargo of it tonight?"

He held up a warning finger and she knew then that he had not the smallest intention of landing a cargo of dope on British soil.

"All ready when you are, Mr. Harris."

Dorling got up from the table in the mess-room where he had just finished a light repast of coffee and cheese. In the corner of the room sat Tredegar, smoking.

"How on earth you can do your job on a meal like that beats me."

Across the courtyard Cecily was standing in the doorway of her hut. He beckoned to her and she came toward him.

Tredegar came out of the mess-room.

"Going to see her start, Miss Warren?" he remarked. "It's a fine sight, personally, I'm used to it."

"Then please don't bother to come with us, Tredegar," said Dorling, and, taking Cecily by the arm, hurried her over the rocky path.

"Just climb straight in and leave me to do the talking—if any," he said in an undertone, aware that Tredegar was following them.

"Right-ho," she answered gaily. Through the sleeve of her coat he could feel that she was trembling.

"I'm a bit shaky but it's just the excitement," she added.

"I don't expect we'll get much more than a bit of back-chat."

As they drew near the waiting aeroplane the handful of mechanics clustered about her grinned and Dorling vaguely wondered why.

He led Cecily to the foot of the ladder.

She had already begun her ascent when Tredegar came forward.

"Sorry, Miss Warren, but I can't allow that. It's against the orders."

"I'm giving the orders, Tredegar. Miss Warren is going with me."

"My dear fellow, you'll find out that defiance of the chief never pays. We'll have to stop you." He turned to the mechanics. "Now you fellows—rush him!"

With a leisurely movement Dorling drew his revolver and fired into the air.

To his surprise and gratification the mechanics and Tredegar himself instantly held their hands up.

"I see we understand each other," said Dorling. "Any man who tries to interfere with me will get a bullet for his trouble. . . . You needn't go on holding your hands up," he added irritably.

Poems That Live

NATURE

THE bubbling brook doth leap when I come by,
Because my feet find measure with its call;
The birds know when the friend they love is nigh,
For I am known to them, both great and small.
The flower that on the lonely hillside grows
Expects me there when spring its bloom has given;
And many a tree and bush my wanderings knows,
And e'en the clouds and silent stars of heaven;
For he who with his Maker walks aright,
Shall be their lord as Adam was before;
His ear shall catch each sound with new delight,
Each object wear the dress that then it wore;
And he, as when erect in soul he stood,
Hear from his Father's lips that all is good.

Tredegar, then followed his example and dropped their hands.

"I'm not going to send one of these men to certain death," said Tredegar.

"You have the only revolver on this island, my dear Harris—which is unfortunate for you because we must leave you for the Chief to deal with himself. Bon voyage."

"Come on, Cecily! All clear!" he called to her for she had been standing on the ladder.

He followed her into the cockpit.

"Douglas!" There was that in her voice which alarmed him.

"There's some trick in it—putting their hands up like that. It wasn't true about your having the only revolver. I've seen several revolvers since I've been here. I believe every man carries one."

"Not the mechanics, surely!" he retorted, with a note of doubt in his voice. "They don't seem to have them handy or we should have had some fun. Get right down on the floor, and we'll see what the next step is."

He swung into his seat and started the engine while Cecily crouched obediently on the floor. The engine was already warm but he let it turn over for several minutes, while nothing of the ordinary seemed to be happening below. She had raised a doubt in his mind that he could not wholly dispel. Suddenly he stopped the engine.

"You still think they're up to some trick?"

"I don't know," she answered. "Perhaps it's only part of the nightmare. They seemed to me to be acting a part."

"I think you're rather biting over it," he gave back. "No man wants to risk his life on this job. I think they're only anxious to save their skins."

He restarted the engine and by this time the doubt had vanished. He accelerated and a few seconds later the plane had risen.

A fitful breeze had got up which demanded his attention. He had intended to use the emergency levers to drop his cargo as soon as he had left the island, but he decided to retain it until he had neared the end of his journey. If he had no ballast he might find himself too light in the wind.

Soon he had steadied her and the long monotonous flight had begun. Hour succeeded hour. Now and again he would turn toward Cecily and she would smile back at him.

Distance could only be judged from the instruments—a task which involved a good deal of anxious calculation.

"Must be very nearly through now," he told himself. He was checking his calculations when suddenly a white light glowed on the roof of the cockpit.

He caught his breath. That white glow could be carried by one thing only—the beam of a searchlight from a naval patrol.

"My God, Cecily—the navy!"

Cecily did not hear his exclamation. In the din of the cockpit only the most experienced ear could hear the human voice. But he glanced at her and noticed that she had seen the beam of light. He smiled and nodded to reassure her while he himself knew a moment of wild panic on her behalf.

What if the ship should open fire? He was flying comparatively low, within easy range. Moreover, he was getting nearer and nearer. In less than a minute, he judged, he would be immediately above the searchlight.

"A population of 500,000 by 1932" is Atlanta's slogan. Let's all pull together for a Greater Atlanta.

Frick Company Branch Here Stands Ahead of All Others

During a recent visit of one of the executives of the Frick Machinery Company, of Waynesboro, Pa., to the Atlanta factory branch of the company, he heartily congratulated the Georgia representative, T. H. Ball, upon his leading every month this year their 28 branch sales offices scattered throughout the United States and Canada.

The Atlanta office is making a remarkable record in heavy machinery sales. Sales for the first eight months have been more than $100,000 over the corresponding period of last year, which was the best year the Frick Company had had in 55 years in the Atlanta territory.

Both the visiting and local officials agreed that the long years the Frick Company's various machines and steam boilers have been used in this part of the country has been a large contributing factor in the ever-increasing volume of business this big company receives. Their records show that where a father bought a saw mill, steam boiler, or threshing machine some time during the last half century, his sons or nephews have bought something in the machinery line and did this because of their own knowledge of the dependable service the Frick machines have so long rendered in their family.

The Frick saw mills have become so numerous throughout Georgia and adjoining states the last few years that if a car owner should take a week's trip around the state he would notice if he inspected the saw mills that there were more Frick mills than any other kind, and some of these might be a good many years old, yet performing to the satisfaction of their owners.

The Frick Company has always been rated as a leader in saw mills and grain machinery in this country, having been established away back in 1853. Since that time from one generation to another it has been manufacturing the best in steam engines, boilers and mill machinery. From a small beginning in a cross roads blacksmith shop this firm has grown to cover many acres and its many units give employment to several hundred skilled mechanics.

Much credit for the growth and steady progress the Frick Company has been making is due to the branch sales managers and their traveling salesmen, not only in the sales they make, but the helpful advice they can give in suggesting new machines or improvements to existing machines as they see the needs in visiting these mills.

One of the greatest needs, it appeared, was a lighter saw mill that could be moved closer to timber in rough or inaccessible places for heavy mills. Acting on the advice of field men the engineers brought out their new light 01 saw mill, then their 02 mill and 03 mill. These mills are all suited for small or large timber patches where it is cheaper to move often rather than haul the logs long distances to the mills.

In price these mills are much less than the heavier mills and can be run with steam boiler, gas or electric power.

The favorite mill of the buyers the last two or three years is the 01, and many of these are cutting large and small timber in the swamps, along the river banks and in the hills of Georgia, the Carolinas, Alabama and Tennessee. The uniform lumber cut by these mills brings the top price for the grade cut.

Sunshine Peanut Butter Co. Sending Many Orders South

The Sunshine Peanut Butter Company, of 185 Peters street, S. W., has taken time to ship out the first of its south Georgia distributor.

This firm has been so busy the past few weeks on Carolina orders that the people in south Georgia have eaten about all the Sunshine brand peanut butter, and some large orders came in the past few days. The sum total for immediate delivery amounts to nearly 45,000 glasses, or a carload.

"A gratifying feature about these orders from south Georgia," says F. D. Terry, president of the Sunshine Peanut Butter Company, is that we are pleased to ship so much of our Sunshine brand right back in the part of the state where our peanuts are raised. We are also very well pleased with the co-operation we are receiving from our distributors who are telling their customers that Sunshine brand peanut butter is made of south Georgia peanuts, and the more people who eat southern raised products the more their money will work for the south."

Due to a secret process of improving his Sunshine brand, discovered a little over three years ago, Mr. Terry's company has become a very important factor in the peanut world. He points out that the many repeat 100 case lots is the best testimonial to the Sunshine brand peanut butter is becoming very popular wherever it is once used.

This palatable peanut butter is very nutritious and is very healthful. As peanuts are known to possess oils that are fattening and good for dyspepsia they should be beneficial to thin or run-down people, and when they are put up in the form of butter with all shells and the tiny heart bitter part of the peanut removed it is only in rare cases that the over-eating of peanut butter could be harmful.

The president of the Sunshine Peanut Butter Company is very much alive to the needs of the average housewife. Not only does the company pack butter in the ordinary glass tumblers but also in fancy goblets and sherbet glasses. This gives the housewife who buys two or more glasses of the Sunshine brand every week the opportunity of very quickly accumulating an assortment of fancy glassware.

This busy peanut products factory is in itself a big customer for the Hazel Atlas Glass Company, of Wheeling, W. Va., using one and two carloads of glasses a week.

Atlanta Oil Burner Dealer Is Making a Sales Record

Ten years ago the average Atlanta citizen knew nothing about automatic oil-burners, and not a dozen houses in the city were equipped with method of heating. Now it is doubtful if there is any well-to-do house in the Ohio river where there are as many of these automatic oil heaters as in Atlanta.

One of the most active dealers in Atlanta, due to its many advantages, has been selected by several of the larger companies as their southern headquarters and distributing branches, and the people of this vicinity are favored in the many opportunities they have to see the various oil-burners demonstrated.

One of the most active dealers in Atlanta the past two years is the Preferred Heating Company, of 583 Spring street, N. W. This firm is making a record this season with the Hart oil-burner that any other of their representatives, even in the larger cities of the north, will find hard to equal. It has sold 40 burners in the last 52 days, and the crew of expert mechanics are out all the time installing these burners as fast as they can.

"One of the most gratifying features about our sales this season," says H. P. Ward, president, "is that we are installing these Hart oil-burners in some of the best homes in and around Atlanta. Among those who have sold were the late Mr. H. M. Atkinson and Jackson Dick on Una drive."

"If we were to publish the balance of the names we have sold this season it would look like a 'Who's Who' of Atlanta and we are highly pleased that so many prominent Atlanta people are buying the Hart oil-burners. We are also well pleased with our Brownell automatic stoker business."

Continued Mr. Woodward. "After we installed three of these underfed automatic stokers in a public laundry, a club house and a building last spring they furnished us the best kind of demonstration tests and many of the best and largest firms in the city are now looking to us to claim that one of these Brownell automatic coal stokers pays for itself in the first two years."

The Brownell type A-1 underfed stoker is entirely automatic and, except for the filling of the coal hopper, requires very little attention. Dependable, sensitive, electrically operated controls accurately regulate the feeding of coal upward by the well-known and widely adopted underfed method of firing.

"The principle of underfed firing found in this stoker is the same as employed in the Brownell side dump type underfed. In fact this method has long been recognized by engineers as the most efficient of all coal-burning methods because underfed firing prevents over-firing, prevents under-firing, insures proper stoking of the coal and proper ignition and combustion of the volatile gases."

"The Brownell stoker burns the lower grades of coal effectively, mine screenings, slack or buckwheat, etc. These lower grades of coal are much cheaper, hence the difference in price between them and the better grades required for hand firing represents a very great saving in fuel costs."

"Not only does automatic stoker firing extract the greatest amount of heat from the fuel, thereby reducing the tonnage of fuel required, but it does it with cheap instead of expensive fuel."

"Our latest installation of these Brownell stokers," concluded Mr. Woodward, "is now going on in the Henry Grady hotel, where we are putting four of them to furnish all the heat required for this big modern hotel."

Cotton Under Depressing Influences During Week

New Orleans, September 22.—(AP)—There was somewhat less activity in the past week in the cotton market than characterized the preceding weekly periods. Prices fluctuated frequently but not within a very wide range. The net result of the week's trading was a net decline of 7 points on October and 8 points on December. The extreme difference between the December high and low was only 20 points, or about $1.50 a bale.

In the early part of the week the market showed a tendency to ease off owing largely to hedge selling arising from the rapidly with which the crop is being marketed.

Anticipation of large ginning totals for the latest period to September 16 was likewise a depressing influence. These offerings were absorbed largely by trade buying on the scale down which served at least to take care of the hedges.

Later in the week there developed some improvement in prices due partly to reports of a better demand for spots at a higher basis and partly to private estimates for ginnings for the last period which proved smaller than traders were expecting. As a result prices rallied about 17 points but eased off again in Saturday's trading to the lowest levels of the week.

There has been an active demand for spots in the local market as well as in southern markets generally. While the demand until recently was for good grades such as an inch staple and better there has more lately also sprung up a fair demand for the medium and lower grades mainly for export.

Exports have increased of late and on Saturday the total shipments for the season to date passed ahead of last year's total for the corresponding period totaling 701,507 bales as against 697,594 last year.

The following shows the high, low and closing sales in the New Orleans futures market during the past week compared with a year ago:

	High.	Low.	Closing.	Year.

Camp Company Was One of First to Render Service in Atlanta.

The American people have much to learn about their own cars, says J. A. Camp, president of the Camp Cylinder Grinding Company, and while many know just what to do when their car is not running right, there are thousands who neglect the little things when they first appear, and very often pay high for their experience in sacrificing their car at a great loss later on.

The engine of an automobile is like any other complex piece of machinery, only it is called on to perform its full duty under all circumstances, and at all times it is subject to great strains and it is more disused by unskilled operators than any other piece of high-priced machinery.

First year drivers make many mistakes in driving their new cars, and others neglect to look over their cars carefully once in a while and then wonder why their car does not run as well as usual, probably at the time they need it the most.

Very often it is the cylinders that need grinding. This is a matter of small cost and little time lost, and when it is done, the old car runs as smoothly as when it was new and the owner has again the confidence that his car will take him where he is going and bring him back.

The Camp Cylinder Company was running a first-class, well-equipped machine shop when it started cylinder grinding several years ago and now does all kinds of machine work. The fact that it was one of the first to take up cylinder grinding in this vicinity has earned the company a big reputation for doing fine work in this line.

The shop is located at 173 Houston street, near Piedmont avenue. Where it is not convenient or possible to send a car to the shop portable grinding machines are sent out to do the work. Anyone in need of expert service on an automobile engine can get information desired at Walnut 5355.

COTTON PRICES OFF BUT DEMAND GOOD

BY GEORGE A. DUNAGIN,
Atlanta Representative, United States
Department of Agriculture.

The cotton market during the period September 16-20 witnessed a rather steady undertone with final quotations about 1-4 to 5-16c lower than those of September 13. Foreign demand was said to have improved but domestic inquiries seemed to be mostly for immediate shipments but not in very sizable transactions. Grades mostly in demand seemed to be from strict low middling to strict middling in the lengths 7-8 to 1-3-2 inches. According to the weather bureau, cotton made fair progress in most portions of the belt during the past week but picking and ginning were interrupted, rather extensively because of frequent showers. According to the bureau of the census, domestic raw cotton consumption for August amounted to 553,113 bales, compared with 520,340 for August a year ago and cotton on hand in consuming establishments on August 31 amounted to 802,200 bales, compared with 781,470 on the corresponding date of the previous year.

Quotations for middling spot cotton 7-8 September 20: Norfolk 18.50; Augusta 18.00; Savannah 18.17; Montgomery 17.55; New Orleans 18.20; Memphis 17.30; Little Rock 17.32; Dallas 17.35; Houston 18.30; Galveston 18.30. Average for these ten markets September 20 17.52c per pound against 18.15 September 13 and 17.53 September 21, 1928. Reported sales of spot cotton in the designated markets for the week at New York declined 31 points to 18,476, New Orleans 26 to 18,339 and Chicago 25 to 18,476.

Certificated cotton at New York September 20 65,373 bales, New Orleans 9,442, Houston 2,663, Galveston 2,697. Total Stocks New York 101,977 bales, New Orleans 136,677, Houston 277,878, Galveston 145,749. Exports to September 20 this season 770,119 bales, against 731,170 for the same period one year ago.

Grade differences remained practically unchanged during the past week and transactions in strict middling were said to have been readily done at 25 points on middling and for strict low middling at 75 points off middling.

Premium staple cotton were reported as quiet with a good number of inquiries coming from buyers but at such premiums that were not interesting to sellers. France said that offers were being received in that market for cottons in the lengths 1-3-2 and 1-4-4 inches but business was difficult to transact on account of the cheapness of Egyptians.

Southern mill centers said that business was largely confined to cottons in the grades strict low middling up to strict middling in the lengths 7-8 to 15-16 with some business done in the grades mentioned in the staple length of one inch. Southern mills were said to be buying mostly for immediate requirements only. According to the bureau of the census, southern mills during the month of August consumed 428,382 bales, compared with 403,431 in August last year.

Northern mills reported a broad demand with steady buying though not in very large quantities. Considerable activity prevailed in both extra staple cottons as well as in the selected shorter cottons.

According to the bureau of the census the New England states mills during August consumed 108,820 bales against 102,595 for August a year ago.

Dry goods centers reported prices firmly maintained during the past week with some slight advances where nearby goods are not plentiful. Among the encouraging features were said to be the perceptible increase in the distribution of goods. Grey coarse goods and buyers of such goods were said to be apart in their price views with, however, some business done. Sheelings were reported as generally strong but with small business. Prints and colored goods were said to have improved in both demand and prices.

Foreign markets reported a further improvement in demand for American cotton on the spot, continued to show further improvement with also a better inquiry for export. Sales of American cotton at Liverpool for the week about 215,000 bales, compared with about 18,000 thousand the previous week. Stocks of American cotton at Liverpool on September 13, 286,000 bales, compared with 334,000 a year ago. Manchester said that a better demand for all grades was evidenced during the past week but with offerings of certain grades and lengths of staple from both Texas and the Memphis district rather limited. Forward business was reported not so good as during the previous week. Offerings of Atlantic states cottons during the week were said to have been raised in basis. Cloth buyers were not so active as the previous week and yard turnover was smaller. Stocks of American cotton at Manchester on September 13, 156,000 bales compared with 250,000 a year ago. Havre said that demand was less active during the past week with the interest of spinners less due to their inclination to construct recent rains as an argument for the American crop. Moderate price fixing was reported from that market. Stocks of American cotton at Havre September 13, 65,000 bales, compared with 125,000 a year ago. Milan said that a fair demand continued for c. i. cotton, especially for near shipments. Offerings of cottons in the lengths one inch and longer were reported scarce. Yarns were in better demand.

World's takings of cotton, all kinds, to September 13 of this season was 2,119,351 bales of which American was 1,563,151, compared with 2,004,922 of which American 1,531,752 for the corresponding day the previous season.

SWING TO BONDS SEEN BY EXPERTS

New York, September 21.—A London cable, published here this week, discussing our stock market, expressed the low level that the recent extreme of the bull that the recent extreme of the bearish stock market prediction of Babson which was followed by a violent decline in stock prices and then a recovery had made our bankers and our traders in the stock market think something fatal to a continuation of a long sustained bull stock market. The recovery in the stock market from son's bearish prediction, has not been impressive.

Some of the shrewdest and most far-sighted leaders in this country, however, began to think and change their stock market views, long before Babson made his very bearish stock market prediction a fortnight or so ago. Andrew W. Mellon belongs in this class.

Mellon, widely recognized as one of the ablest men in this country, publicly expressed the belief months ago, early last spring, that it was time to switch from the stock market into the bond market. So far, largely because of the unexpected activities of investment trusts, Mellon has been wrong. Stocks have continued to advance and bonds have continued to decline. Mr. Mellon, however, would probably say that what has happened in the bond and stock markets since last April on top of what has happened for the past eight years has only made him more certain that it is time to switch from the stock to the bond market.

Once a month, the New York Trust Company, one of the large financial institutions in Wall Street, makes public its index of security prices. This index covering bonds includes 66 different issues divided into six groups. The index covering stocks includes 103 stocks divided into 12 groups serving as many different industries. Here is what this very interesting price index shows for the month up to September 1 and for the eight months since the beginning of this year.

Much is being heard today in Wall Street of the advisability of buying stocks that have not so far participated in the unprecedented bull stock market. If this advice is followed, plainly, the stocks that are the best buy are sugars, leather and shoe, oils, rubbers, shipping, and motors. Stocks in the group just named plainly are selling far below the average for 103 stocks and far below such market leaders as coppers, rails and public utilities.

Some Wall Street people, however, whose views are highly valued, are not advising the purchase of comparatively low-priced stocks. In such quarters it is pointed out that there are good reasons why sugars, leather and shoe, oils, rubber, shipping and motor shares are selling at the comparatively low prices and that these reasons still exist. In some cases it has been the tariff; in some, overproduction; in some, international causes. It is being pointed out further that the most money made in the unprecedented bull stock market has been made in so-called good stocks that is, high priced stocks. The reason these stocks have advanced to high prices is found in favorable trade conditions and in good management.

In some quarters of Wall Street the opinion is held that the so-called good stocks, that is, the high priced ones, have had more of an advance than warranted by earning power as far ahead as can be seen; that some of the so-called good stocks are selling at 20 times their earnings per share, some at 30 times, and some at even more. Public utilities are in the class last named.

Those in Wall Street who do not favor buying stocks or the so-called good high-priced stocks are advising switching from stocks to bonds. Good stocks are selling so high that they are not expected to return as much as bonds. Bonds have been declining for more than a year. The average price of bonds is now the lowest in several years. Good bonds are yielding to yield from 5 to 6 per cent. Principal invested, say in railroad bonds at 91, will go much further than in railroad stocks averaging 164 a share and in public utilities averaging 241 a share.

It would not take much unfavorable news to switch the interest of the big outside public over from stocks yielding 9 per cent or less to bonds yielding 5 per cent or more. If that should happen there would be a change in the price trend of both the stock and the bond market, on the favor of the buyer, the other against the seller. Some Wall Street people while realizing Mellon has been wrong for months, believe that for the longer swing he will be right.

SEASONED ISSUES SHOW NO CHANGE

New York, September 22.—(P)—Sentiment toward bonds failed to show a change last week and the market for seasoned issues stood virtually stationary, neither bids nor offerings were of any proportions, with the result that trading was extremely thin.

The convertibles, as usual, carried the bulk of the volume, turnovers in the stock feature issues were larger than in recent weeks, due chiefly to the resumption of heavy dealings in the two telephone company convertibles and to an increased demand for the new investment trust debentures with share privileges.

Time money advanced to 9 per cent for all maturities after ruling between 8 3/4 to 9 for about a month. The former rate had been the outlook for bonds and the end of the week found few traders willing to hazard a guess as to when conditions would improve. Investment houses report that a substantial number of their clients who formerly took bonds have put funds into bank and insurance stocks.

There was a flurry of activity in a couple of adjustment income rails during the week on announcements of favorite earnings declines and declarations. St. Paul 5s, on which 1-2 per cent will be paid October 1, and Hudson Manhattan 5s were taken at slightly higher levels, the latter on a favorable earnings statement, otherwise the rail group of the bond list was extremely sluggish.

Industrials and utilities showed a few new low bids, but the sequence was absent, since holders of bonds appear to prefer keeping their investments until conditions have stabilized. Demand for the new grade bonds in these two groups is extremely light.

Neither foreign nor United States government issues showed much change, the condition of the market for the former is delaying the flotation of several large loans, but borrowers will respond promptly to a change in sentiment. Reports to the department of commerce said that a number of American investment banks in Germany had obtained options on large loan projects which had been consummated when the situation warranted.

New bond offerings in the past week showed a slight decrease, totaling $30,065,000 compared with $131,000,000 in the week ending September 16, 1929.

DAY BY DAY IN BUSINESS

BY JOHN F. SINCLAIR.

Brookline Economic Service Co-operating (Copyright, 1929, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

The Rubber Situation.

The most promising thing in the rubber and rubber tire situation is the progressive decline in rubber consumption, which indicates that the large rubber companies are attempting to curtail production and bring stocks of tires into better balance with demand.

During the first half of 1929 consumption of rubber was more than 26 per cent greater than in the same period of 1928; July consumption was 10 per cent greater than last year and August consumption 12 per cent less, showing a progressive decline in consumption as compared with the same period a year ago.

Tire stocks at the end of June were 48 per cent greater than in the year previous and 106 per cent above the five-year average for that period. By the end of July these excesses had declined to 42 per cent as compared with last year, and 103 per cent as compared with the five-year average. In other words there has been some improvement, though small.

Shipments of tires last June were about 2 per cent greater than in June, 1928, but in July, for the first time this year, they were somewhat under the corresponding month of 1928. As compared with the five-year average, however, July was 61 per cent greater, while June was only 53 per cent greater, showing a continued strong demand for casing.

From the foregoing it will be seen that there has been some improvement in the tire situation. Although stocks are more than double the five-year average, they are only 80 per cent greater, which means that stocks appear to be still rather excessive. This is particularly true when consideration is given to the fact that automobile production for the last half of this year, outside of Ford, will probably be considerably less than for the corresponding period of 1928.

Furthermore, the increase in replacement demand due to the high rate of automobile production for the last half of 1928 and the first half of 1929 will not appear until the latter part of 1930.

In summary, it may be said that the rubber situation is showing some improvement and that the sharp decline in consumption as reported for August indicates that the producers are determined to get the situation in hand as quickly as possible, but that stocks of tires are still excessive and that there is no reason to expect any large increase in demand until after the first half of next year.

Important: Readers of The Atlanta Constitution are invited to submit questions of a general financial nature. Whenever practical or expedient these will be confidentially answered.

The Business Barometer

BY THEODORE H. PRICE,
Editor, Commerce and Finance, New York.

In New York and most other large cities the boom in stocks continues to be the subject of discussion wherever men are gathered together. Commenting upon it a veteran trader recently remarked that we have discounted the hereafter as well as the future. There are some things in the situation which indicate that the public may be coming to share this view.

As a matter of fact the average price of the issues that have been active on the New York Stock Exchange and the New York Curb Market since the first of the year is now substantially below the top, and even the most popular favorites, such as United States Steel, are well under the highest prices touched since the thirty-first day of December, 1928.

This fact was not generally appreciated until attention was called to it in these letters some two weeks ago. Since then the effervescence of the stock market has diminished, although occasional spurts are still being attempted in this, that, or the other group. But to this piping the public have latterly refused to dance, and it remains to be seen whether they can be induced to re-enter the market that gives so many evidences of having spent itself.

Then there is the question of undistributed securities. The New York Times of September 17 publishes a striking article in which it is suggested that a large proportion of the brokers' loans, so called, are being used to carry securities that have not yet been distributed. It is pointed out that new issues offered to the public during the month of August aggregated $751,000,000, or four times the offerings in the same month a year ago. Everyone must answer this question for himself, but the conscientious student of economic history would be reluctant to say that the high rate of undistributed securities is likely to cause indigestion.

Everyone must answer this question for himself, but the conscientious student of economic history would be reluctant to say that the high rate of undistributed securities is likely to cause indigestion.

But when we come to study the commercial and industrial phases of the present situation, it must be admitted that they seem to spell continued prosperity, in so far as the future can be described through the haze by which it is always obscured. Trade continues good. In some lines it is running ahead of last year; in some others it is slightly behind the record of 1928, but on the whole it is probably equal to last year, and with good prices for grain the west promises to be a liberal buyer of merchandise during the autumn. Most observers concede that fall and holiday retail trade will set a new high record.

In the south the decline in cotton seems to have been philosophically accepted, and the market has apparently stabilized itself around 18 cents, at which price the crop appears to be moving into consumption with relative ease. Apparently the minds of the buyers and sellers have met, for there is but little bull speculation in the market, and short sellers are few. The trade in cotton goods is about up to expectation. Sales of automobiles equal to the presently curtailed production, and there is less complaint of excess stocks of goods.

With most of the new crop of Brazil has an estimate of 85 of 23,000,000 bags against an average world consumption of 22,000,000. Brazil's previous yearly exports in never exceeded 16,000,000 bags, with the swift increase in the world production elsewhere she cannot hope to market more than that about this year. So there are 7,000,000 bags of estimated surplus to consume at home, added to the 8,000,000 bags which were in storage in the interior at the beginning of the present crop year on July 1.

These are the salient features of a situation whose influence may extend far beyond the coffee trade, and it should be carefully watched as its implications embrace a staple that is universally consumed and a field of credit that is correspondingly wide. Sugar has turned easier since distributors covered their requirements until about October 1 and the European beet crop received needed rains. Rubber is firm on reduction of tire inventories. But in commodities as whole the present price trend seems mostly sideways and there is no sign of the inflation for which some have been watching.

The week's news from Europe and the Far East is without any very direct bearing upon American business. Perhaps it is not too much to say that the whole world is marking time politically while it awaits the conference between President Hoover and Premier MacDonald that will be held in Washington early in October. It will be one of the most momentous meetings that has ever been held, and if the conclusions reached provide an effective guarantee of peace through disarmament, humanity will have made a tremendous advance toward the warless world of which Tennyson dreamed when he wrote of a "Parliament of Man."

Viewed from an economic standpoint alone, a realization of his dream would be the most bullish influence that can be imagined, but it will take time to transmute the ideal into the material, and those who hope for an effective assurance of peace will have to be patient.

Indiana Governor Calls For Clarification of Laws To Permit Dry Enforcement

Leslie Tells W. C. T. U. State and National Statutes Overlap; Line Must Be Drawn.

Indianapolis, Ind., September 22.—(P)—Congressional legislation clarifying the relationship of state and federal governments regarding enforcement of prohibition laws is necessary before prohibition can be made effective, Governor Harry G. Leslie, of Indiana, declared today at a luncheon in connection with the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union's fifty-fifth annual convention here.

The governor's statement was made at the unveiling of the Indiana state house of a bronze plaque commemorating the election in this city 50 years ago of Miss Frances Elizabeth Willard as president of the W. C. T. U. Mr. Leslie accepted the tablet, made by Lorado Taft, Chicago sculptor, following presentation by Mrs. Ella A. Boole, of Brooklyn, N. Y., national W. C. T. U. president.

"Today Indiana is as dry as law can make it under present enforcement conditions," Governor Leslie declared. "She is in the forefront of those states who are co-operating with the federal government in the enforcement of the prohibition act. But to make prohibition more effective there must be legislation by congress to clarify the relationship of the federal enforcing authorities to the enforcement authorities of the several sovereign states. Enforcement responsibility must be placed."

"The effectiveness of prohibition," he added, "is dependent upon public opinion."

The tablet ceremonies were attended by three members of the temperance union who were present at the election of Miss Willard.

GIL PROMISES THOROUGH PROBE OF ELECTION CLASH

Mexico City, September 22.—(P)—President Emilio Portes Gil promised a thorough investigation of the political clash in the neighborhood of the plaza at Friday night that resulted in four deaths before he left for a 15-day trip to Monterey and Tampico last night. He informed the press that the police probe had revealed an automobile owned by Deputy Teodoro Villagas and occupied by several persons was in the neighborhood of the plaza at the time of the disturbance. The president said this had led the public to suspect that persons holding official posts had instigated the attack on followers of Jose Vasconcelos, anti-re-electionist candidate for the presidency. For this reason he said a most thorough investigation was necessary and promised that the guilty would be punished, whatever their positions.

He said the campaign for the presidential elections on November 17 had taken on a most objectionable character and that violence must be checked.

Experts Probe Mystery Death of "Mad Empress"

POLICE BAFFLED BY SPINSTER'S DEATH

Suisan, Cal., September 22.—(United Press.)—Around the body of an elderly spinster—an heiress who would have had all persons bow to her as "empress of the world"—specialists in criminology, post-mortem examination and pathology today bent their energies toward solution of a death mystery.

Beside the bier of Irene Wolfskill, 57, descendant of an old and wealthy California family, the experts in the three branches of modern science met for several hours today.

They were called in to determine whether Miss Wolfskill had been killed or died of exhaustion while wandering over the country she was happy to call her empire. Seldom has the cause of a death been more puzzling.

Skilled in the conduct of autopsies was Dr. A. A. Berger, of San Francisco, learned in the field of pathology was Dr. A. M. Moody, of San Francisco, and noted for his exploits in the solution of crimes was E. O. Heinrich, of Berkeley.

A close and vitally interested spectator was Sheriff Jack Thornton, of Solano county, who is in charge of all forces on the case.

At the conclusion of the examination, the experts agreed that the woman would furnish written reports in two or three days. The reports will not likely be ready in time for the coroner's inquest, expected to be held Wednesday.
